The deputy marshals sent out yesterday to serve the injunctions have all reached their destination without interference. It is the plan of the company to work on the Minnesota divisions first, and after getting them in perfect order to proceed west, a division at a time, so that the injunction will not be served in Montana at present.

The morning trains for Fergus Palls and Barnesville left about two hours late. As the schedule is all broken up in any event, it was thought best to delay the trains until the division superintendents were certain the trains were manned by employes in whom they had perfect confidence, so that it would be unnecessary to send out detectives or deputy marshals.

Glardon and Lizzie Steinegge Are Still Unmarried

The matrimonial troubles which are now agitating the families of Peters, Giardon and Steinegger have not yet been settled up. It was expected that at noon to-day, John Glardon and his sweetheart, Lizzie Steinegger, would have made arrangements to get married, but up to 2 o'clock they had not ap peared.

The story of their troubles was told in part in yesterday's Post-Disparch. Glardon went to the Recorder's office with Lizzie Steinegger and said he lived at No. 24 South Ninth street and that the girl lived at 1432 North Beaumont street. They appeared too young, so the license was refused. Just as the young couple, who are both under age, left the office, Mrs. Peters, who lives at No. 24 South Ninth street, came in and protested. Glardon returned a little later with his mother, but that was not sufficient, as the girl was not of age. Fo they went off to prove that she was and that she was an orphan.

A DEBAUCH

A Young and Beautiful Wife Disgraces Herself.

Robbed of Her Watch and Jewelry in a Wine Room.

MRS, LEWIS, A FURNISHED ROOM HOUSE PROPRIETOR, AS A GOOD SAMABITAN.

She Rescues the Woman From a Wine Room, Takes Care of Her and Hunts Up Her Relatives-The Woman's Passion for Drink Amounted to Insenity.

The habitues of certain down-town saroons are trying to solve a very interesting mys-tery which surrounds a handsome woman whose fondness for liquor has led her into public drinking resorts and the wine-rooms of saloons where women not of her sphere are nightly found.

She was first seen on Sunday night in one of the wine rooms, and her dress, appear and and manner attracted very curious attention to her. She is a young woman, seemingly not yet more than 30 years of age. Her dress was rich and elegant, with some of the gaudy display of that class of well-dressed women who are accustomed to visit such places. Her face was refined and beautiful and there was not in it a line which indicated coarseness of living. She eemed like one who had lived a quiet, gentle among the softening influences life of home, but she was drinking hard and fast. An "old-timer" would have scarcely attempted to keep up with her unless he was eager to drown a sorrow quickly.

She was seen in several such places, and in every one she aroused curlosity, for she was evidently out of place. Later in the evening she showed very plainly the signs of her hard drinking. She was very much intoxicated, and talked and drank with the other occupants of the wine room, but even then she was refined, and would not for a moment permit any familiarity or countenance the least vulgarity in con ROBBED OF WATCH AND MONEY. After a time, however, she became exceedingly drunk and wandered about from ne place to another until she, came to Martin's saloon on Sixth and Market streets

She went in there and to the occupant of the place complained that she has been robbed. She said that she had left chain. The watch and chain had been stoler and all her money was gone. She knew of $57 which had been stolen and could not account for the balance. She was asked her name, but even in that condition she carefully concealed it. She mentioned an address in the West End which it would be manifestly improper to mention.

A GOOD SAMARITAN. Tuesday afternoon a Mrs. Lewis, who keep Eighth street, stepped into the wine-room of the Albambra saloon on Eighth street. This woman was there. She was very furnik and her hands and face were covered with dirt. She approached Mrs. Lewis and asked her if she would not find her a place where she could fix herself up. Mrs. Lewis took her home, and after she sobered up she told her story. She was a Boston woman, married and the mother of three children. She was here, she sald, on a visit to her brother who is a prominent professional man whose name is not revealed out of consideration for his position. The woman stated that she had been on a spree since Friday. She had been carousing with all sorts of men in all sorts of places. In one of her debauches she had as a companion a prominent distilier and they both got so drunk in his place of business that they slept all night on the floor of his office.

Mrs. Lewis kept the woman until this morning when she consented to the whomen works. Eighth street, stepped into the wine-room

Mrs. Lewis kept the woman until this norning, when she consented to tell who her prother was. He was sent for and came at once to Mrs. Lewis' house. He took her away and sent her on to her home where hen hurband, knowing of her spree, had gone on harband, knowing of her spree, may gone on in advance.

Mrs. Lewis says that the woman was very sweet and kind, but begged constantly for whiskey. She was willing to lower herself to any degree in order to get the liquor she, craved. Her passion for it amounted to insanity and she was powerless to resist the desire. It is fortunate she fell into such good hands as Mrs. Lewis as she still had on a gold necklace and har rings. These were a gold necklace and har rings. These save for her by her new found friend.

and Hedberg during which the latter threatened to kill the Lieutenant. The witness said that the talk became so threatening that he told the men he would place them under arrest unless it ceased.

The defendant took the witness stand and at the request of his attorney told of his life from the time he left West Point until he shot Capt. Hedberg.

Bils testimony was interrupted by a sharp debate between counsel over the admissibility of testimony relating to the court-martial the dead Captain, the Court finally ruling that the evidence might be introduced.

Maney, continuing, said that he had advised Capt. Hedberg to seek retirement from the army owing to the court-martial; and that the ill-feeling between them began at that time.

J. W. PATTON LOST.

His Suit Against Bishop D. S. Tuttle Deolded.

MACON, Mo., April 19.-The case of J. W. Patton vs. Bishop D. S. Tuttle and the Epis copal Church of Missouri, was this morning decided adversely to the plaintiff in the Circuit Court here. Plaintiff sued for $3,000 on ome notes he held and others assigned to him. The notes were given to liquidate debts of Rev. Ethelbert Tailog, now Bishop of Wyoming and Utah, but then principal of St. James Academy here. They were signed by Bishop Tuttle.

It appeared that a deed of trust was given on the Academy to secure the notes, and the court held that was the property to be looked to by the plaintiff and that neither Bishop Tuttle nor the Episcopal Church of the State was liable.

LOOKED LIKE A CONSPIRACY. Prosecution Against Fordinand Aman

Ferdinand Amann, the butcher at 1889 South Twelfth street, was vindicated in the First District Police Court this afternoon, when he was placed on trial together with Jacob Enigel and Charles Fries on the charge of flaying a dead animal. The evidence brought out at the trial showed that the cow Amann bought was not dead at the time, but was properly slaughtered by him. The meat was not infected in the least, and, furthermore, there was no evidence to show that Amann had tried to convert the beef into sausage. Before half the witnesses ware heard the prosecuting officer agreed to noile pros the cases of Amann and Enigel, and the jury was instructed to find defendant Fries not guilty. There was every indication of a scheme in the prosecution to force Amann to remove his slaughter-house from its present location. Ferdinand Amann, the butcher at 1889

WISSLER INQUEST.

W. P. Murphy Makes a Strange Charge

Against a Physician-This afternoon an inquest was held on the was killed in a fall from a telegraph pole on Pestalozzi street, near Wiscon eral days ago. W. P. Murphy, foreman of the Mi srouri Electric Light and Power Co., for whom Wissler was working, stated that he was present when Wissler fell and with the ald of a fellow workmen carried the injured man into the office of a physician on Pestalozzi street, just east of Wisconsin avenue. They laid him in a chair and called the doctor. The latter came down, but refused to give the injured man any aid whatever, according to Murphy's atory. Coroner Frank has decided to investigate the charge. A verdict of accident was rendered. Wissier was burled yesterday from 1234 North Tweifth street, whare he resided.

ASSAULTED BY HIS WIFE. Ed Boreman Claims She Attacked Him and Tore His Coat Off. The old feud between Ed Boreman and his wife, Minnie, who is the daughter of Mary. Churchill, was resurrected in the First District.Police Court to-day, when the former applied for, a summons charging his wife with disturbing his peace. Not long since, it will be remembered, Boreman caused the arrest of his mothercaused the arrest of his motherlp-law for following him with a revolver and a day of so afterward there was a scene in the Four Courts after Boreman was arraigned on the charge of abandoning his wife. He took a continuance until April 26 on this occasion, and when the witnesses were leaving court a fight ensued.

Everything passed off quietly since then,
until last night, when Boreman was walking on Chouteau avenue, near Fourth street, about 9 o'clock.
He said he did not expect any trouble, but when he came to a dark spot on the road near the Iron Mountain depot, his wife, Minnie, sprang upon him and after striking him several times claims that she tore the coat off his back. For this he got a summons and the case will be tried next Tuesday. Mrs. Boreman its with her mother, Mrs. Churchill, at 220 Plam street at present, and Boreman is living at 236 SouthSecond street. Boreman claims that he not reaponshiple for the ill feeling between mother, Mrs. Churchill, at 220 Plum street at present, and Boreman is living at 236 South-Second street. Boreman claims that he is not responsible for the ill feeling between him and the Churchilla. When he was living with his wife, he said, he objected to his mother-in-law using up his earnings, and this caused a separation. "Then," he continued, "my wife has the nerve to prosecute me for wife abandonment." There is likely to be some fun at the Four Courts before the two cases in which the Boreman couple are involved are disposed of finally.

Counter Charges by Boatmen.

Frank X. Musiler, a shanty boat proprietor at the foot of Missouri avenue, called at the rour Courts to-day and caused a summons to e issued charging Cunegrunda Lohr, also a be issued charging Cunegranda Lohr, also a shanty boat dweller in the same neighborhood, with disturbing the peace. On last Sunday the two had a fight over some boat property, and the following day Cunegrunda swore out a summons against Mueller. When Mueller was summoned to appear in court next Tuesday he decided to appear in court next Tuesday he decided to bring a cross-charge against Canegrands, which he did to day. Mueller said that he did not cause the trouble, and exhibited a black aye as proof positive of Cunegrands's ability as a scrapper.

How Landlord Wm. Richmond Treated His Tenant Emil Vils.

DISPUTE OVER REST WHICH HAD A VERY NOVEL OUTCOME

Both Richmond and Mrs. Wagner Claimed That They Owned the House, and Demanded the Rent of Vils-Biohmond Cut Down the Means of Buit.

Emil Vils. a striking member of the Brewery Drivers' Union, called at the Four Courts this morning and complained to the police of an extraordinary method of sjectment which had been used by his landlord to force him to leave his present habitation in the rear of 2012 Cass avenue. Mr. Vils occupied the unper first at the shore. Mr. Vils occupied the upper flat at the abnumber, and complains that his landle had, upon his refusal to vacate the premis cut down the steps leading to his home, thus rendering the descent of his family, or his ascent thereto, impossible.

TWO LANDLORDS.

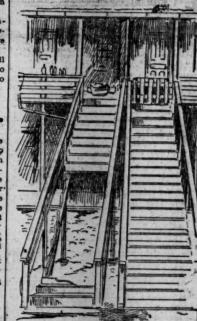

His story as told to the authorities revealed remarkable state of affairs. It appears that Wm. Richmond, a notary public, who occu-ples the flat adjoining his, and who has an office at allow Months. nce at 410½ Market street, owns to premises. For seven years, he lys, Richmond has falled to pay any taxes upon the property, and as a consequence the premises were recently sold by the city at auction and were bought in by a Mrs. Wagner of 2826 DeKalb street. Richmond claims the tax levy was mond claims the tax levy was excessive, and says a suit to settle the title of the property is at present pending before Judge Valliant in the Circuit Court. Vils claims that both Mrs. Wagner and Richmond have made claims upon him for the rent of the premises he occupied, each telling him that no payment made to the other occupant would be recognized. He says that in this emergency he consulted a lawyer, who advised him to pay neither party until the suit deciding the title to the property was settled, and then to pay his rent in a lump sum to the winning side. He has the money to pay his back rent, he says, but was waiting a decision of the suit.

Richmond, he claims, angered by his refusal to pay the money due over to him, came in the middle of the night and cut down the steps leading to his flat. By an acrobatic feat, Vils alleges, he managed to reach the ground, but was obliged to leave his wife and family upstairs without the means of descent. A great gap, he said, had been sawed in his stairs, and his wife and family were just as much besieged in their flat on the second story as if the drawbridge of an old feudal castle had been cut down and the means for crossing the moat removed.

HAD GOTTEK DOWN.

HAD GOTTEN DOWN. A visit to the house this morning showed a great gap in the staircase leading to the house from the back yard, the only means of entrance. Some eight or ten steps had been cut out, and while a man could easily climb out a woman would find it a most ungraceful means of exit, I not an impossible one. When the reporter visited the place the Vits' family had evidently found a means of reaching the ground for the

Mr. Richmond was seen and asked to give an explanation of his action in cutting down the steps. He acknowledged the soft upon the property of which he was owner and said that he had refused to do so because the charges were excessive. and said that he had refused to do so because the charges were excessive.

"I rented the premises to Vist," he said, "and as yet am in possession of the title to them, so that I have a right to collect his rent. When he failed to pay some time ago I was easy on him, in spite of the fact that he was drawing to a week from the Heer Drivers Union as a striker. Escently he became usly and refused to pay altogether. He came home drunk one night and broke two of the steps of the stairway, and the next day he gave his child an axe with which the little one one chopped down we more steps. one chopped down two hors seemed in had a suspicion that he wanted to fail through the broken steps and sue me for damages, so I told him again to vacable the promises, and I would have the broken steps repaired. carpenter! had emplayed commenced work last Tuesday. Of course he had to remove the broken steps, and this is what he did, causing the gap."

When asked way he had not served Vils with proper legal notice to vacate the premises Richmond said that the coats in such a course were too great. He first tried, he said, to get him out by gantle persuasion, and that failing had attempted to cause him such inconvenience as to make him leave willingly.

"I own the premises," he said, "and as he is not paying any rent! want a better tenant in there. I have not to supair the steps and as I gave him notice; I was going to do so in advance, if he failed to move he must stand the consequences."

Vils, he says, owes him sat back rent, and he now proposes to eject him at any cost, legally or otherwise.

DRAWING JURORS.

Belection of Special Juries Left Entirely to the Jury Commissioner.

BUMBER OF JUROES DRAWN FOR THE DIFFERENT COURTS LAST YEAR.

The Criminal Court Made Surprisingly

The attorneys hold that there is a law average intelligence as compared to the nary petit juror. When asked, however, ordinary petit juror. When asked, however, to please point it out they cannot do so, because for a fact it does not exist.

The only law governing the selection of a special jury and the establishing a standard by which the juror shall be measured is the will and pleasure of the Jury Commissioner, and that, to say the least, may be rather erratic at times.

The regular jury system is well known and well defined by law. A regular list is made up of all the eligible citizens, subject to jury service. This is done every two years and the commissioner is authorized to make such additions or erasures as may be necessary from time to time. From the list so constructed the Jury Commissioner 'selects' a special jury when he has been properly notified so to do by the court under the section of the jury laws already given.

He gets very little help, too, from the order served upon him by the Court. It says nothing about average intelligence or any other superior qualification. It seems to leave it to some unwritten law or understanding between the Judge and commissioner.

THE COURT'S ORDER. The order reads as follows:

The order reads as follows:

CTATE OF MISSOURI, City of St. Louis, sct.—

In the Circuit court, City of St. Louis, — term 189—Richard Roe vs. Jehn Doe. The court, havlag considered the defendant — application for a special jury for the trial of this cause, ooth grant the same, and doth order said defendant — to deposit forthwith $75 with the clerk of this court, and from to meet all expenses hereunder.

And the Court doth direct the Jury Commissioner of the City of St. Louis to select and furnish to the Sheriff of the City of St. Louis the names of — good and lawful men, and the said heriff is ordered te summon the persons so named to be and appear in Room No. — of this Court on — 189-, at o'clock — M. then and there to serve as special jures until discharged by the court.

Attested by the Clerk.]

All the Court orders is a specified number of "good and lawful men," and then the Jury Commissioner goes about selecting good and lawful men to the number required and then sends the list to the Sheriff for service. There is no restraint put upon the Jury Commissioner in his selections, as far as choosing from his regular petit jury list is concerned. He can jump from one end of his five volumes of names and select nothing concerned. He can jump from one end of his five volumes of names and select nothing but expert electricians, or nothing but wagon-makers, and so on, as long as he can show that it is not done through any fraudulent intent.

The Grand-jury is a different matter altogether. Every two years the Jury Commissioner submits his list to the judges of the courts of record, and they select from this list the names of 600 men for grand jurors. These are marked off the petit jury list and put in the Grand-jury wheel apart from the others. They are drawn from time to time as needed, and the names of all of those who have served do not go back into the wheel again. The petit juries are likewise drawn out of the wheel when needed, and those who serve are duly marked off the list until a new list is made up. The special jury seems to be more popular than the ordinary in damage suits and corporation cases.

RECORD OF JURORS DRAWN.

RECORD OF JURORS DRAWN. In his last report Commissioner Mansfield shows that for the year ending Sept. 30, 1893, the following jurors were drawn:

the following jurors were drawn:
Circuit Court, special, 5,226; petit 4,425.
Criminal Court, petit, 6,674.
Court of Criminal Correction, petit, 640.
Grand-jury, 246,
Probate Court, 860.
The total jurors drawn numbered 17,571.
These did not all serve and many went back into the wheels or were left on the books to be drawn or selected again.
During the same term 149 special juries were ordered in as many cases. The disposition of the cases after the jury had been ordered was as follows: Two tried by court, 45 continued, 12 changes of venue, 5 dismissed, 6 settled out of court, 15 non-suits, 13 mistrials, 81 verdicts for plaintiff and 22 for defendants.

The jury over which there was so much trials, 81 verdicts for plaintiff and 22 for defendants.

The jury over which there was so much raik during the week brought in a verdict of i cent damages for the death of a boy, where a special jury had previously awarded $1,600, but whose verdict was reversed because of fraity instructions.

Jury Commissioner Manefield says that when he selects the special juries he generally keeps several juries ahead of his orders, so that no time shall be wasted. He chooses generally a jury with names beginning with the same letter, on the ground that there is less chance of his being accused of packing a jury, as he is not likely to know twenty men whose names begin with the same letter who are likely to be of the same opinion on any one subject.

It has been suggested by some lawyers that it would be better to give a definite law ol some kind or else abolish the special jury system altogether.

Keeping a Record. Certain society girls have carried with hem constantly this season pretty little ivery covered note books, with gold pencils attached by means of fine gold chains. At attached by means of fine gold chains. At any of the fashionable gatherings of the winter they would be occasionally discovered in all sorts of out-of-the-way places hurriedly Jotting down items that excited much curiosity as to their nature. Such a secrety was observed, however, that only recently have the true facts leaked out. Each book contains 363 pages, one for each day in the year, and under the proper date is neatly recorded every complimentary speech from the opposite sex received by the owner. If the girls compare notes they will undoubtedly discover many duplicates, and many gallants will be at a loss to account for a sudden coolness on the part of some of their lady friends.

The special jury question has been a subject of a great deal of talk about the Courthouse in the past week, and even now it is a question upon which but very few lawyers are posted.

Like other conveniences of the court, which they find ready and arranged for them, they go upon the presumption that all they have to do is to ask for it and get it. Just how the jury is selected and what they really mean by a special jury very few of them can tell without first going to the books and there discovering that there is but scant law on the subject, and that most of it is on a common law plan.

There is but one section in the State statues which refers to the special jury, and that is very brief.

The Columbia Register (organ of the Tillman administration) extra just issued says the delay in the rendering of the decision has been caused by the fact that Associate Justice Pope did not have the opinions of the other members of the court sent to him until a short time ago and he has been at work writing. What the Administration will do about the decision is not known. A prominent leader, however, said that it was possible that the State would not carry the decision to the United States Supreme Court and would submit the law to the people next fall in the shape of a constitutional amendment. If the people decide to vote for its being put in the constitution that will make it constitutional beyond the reach of the courts.

will make it constitutional beyond the reach of the courts.

The dispensary law went into effect last July. It was known as the Evans act. Under its provisions liquors could only be obtained at State dispensaries in charge of State officers and in sealed packages of from half a pint to five gallons, which must not be opened on the premises. Bar-rooms and clubs must go, and druggists who dispense liquor other than as compounded in medicines are liable to get into trouble.

The act provided that "the manufacture, sale or exchange, or the keeping within this State of any kind of spirituous, malt, vinous, fermented or other intoxicating liquor, or any compound or mixture thereof by whatever name called which will produce intoxication, by any person, firm, corporation or association shall be regulated and conducted by officers of the State.

The law reads as follows:

He further says that the dis-pensary law is not a measure to regulate pensary law is not a measure to regulate the sale of whisky within the police power of the State so much as it is a scheme to add to the State's revenues. He states that while the case under consideration was brought against the act of 1892 the constitutional objections all apply to the act of 1898 now in force, which is substantially identical with it. The news of the decision has caused no open demonstration on the streets of Columbia, but the whole city is wreathed in a smile.

The law reads as follows:

The Gevernor is instructed to appoint a State dispenser on a salary of $1,800, who must be a total abstainer, and he is to sell to the County Boards of Control such apirtimus siquors as here been declared pure by the chemist of the South Carolina College. CLIFF DWELLERS.

Their Strange Customs and Manner of BALTIMORE & OHIO R.R. CO.'S SAFE Living.

> From the Washington Post. At a special meeting of the Geographical Society Mr. Carl Lumbolz delivered a lecture on "The Cliff Dwellers of Mexico." These natives, he said, are mostly Christians, but during the last few years there has been a great decline toward barbarism, there being now out of the whole 80,000 as many as 3,000 pagans. It is the opinion of most people, he said, who are not familiar with these people, that their caves are burrowed out of the cliffs by their own hands, but nature has prochiffs by their caves are burrowed out of the chiffs by their own hands, but nature has provided them with abodes in the sandstone, which are their homes in winter, the only artificial addition to these holes being stone wails, which they make themselves, building them across the openings as barriers against invasion by their neighbors. These caves are the winter residences, small, wooden huts being used outside in summer.

A strange custom of these people, Mr. Lumholtz said, is their reluctance to visit and their lack of hospitality. It is considered a criminal offense, he said, for a man to enter another's house, even on a friendly errand or visit, and an insult for one to take particular notice of another's abode, their conversations being carried on at a distance from their doorways. He went on to describe the industry of the race, stating that corn, pepper andtobacco are their principal vegetable products. Their method of fishing consists of poisoning the waters of their rivers with a bark which stuns the fish, but does not make them unfit to eat. As is the custom of the North American Indians the women are the toliers, while the men merely have the executive cares of the family upon their shoulders, an event which does not appear to be of any great weight, since the parents never correct their children, who would consider any punishment a declaration of a family revolution.

However, Mr. Lumholtz said, honesty is the motto of every one of these strange people, there being no stealing or cheating among them. Their business transactions among them. among them. Their business transactions are all by barter, money not being used as a medium of exchange. The men are models of physical development, often making trips of 800 miles in five days carrying messages to different cities. The average life of a native is 100 years or over, there being no wear upon their physical systems or worriment on their minds. The women always propose matrimony, because they are the real bone and sinew of the family.

Turn About. Ostriches, like all animals, exhibit inter. esting qualities, strikingly like those of human kind to those who observe their daily actions. When they are setting the cock takes his place on the nest at sundown and at sunrise is relieved by his wife, who assumes her position for the day. At the end of the six weeks' incubation both birds are miserably thin and week.

SECRET ARMS.

Oriental Weapons Concealed for Ready Use by Both Sexes.

From the Saturday Review. In Hindostan there is a choice of secret arms. The gupti, or sword-stick, may be bought in every bazar, and it is said to have been used in the days of Akbar (1543-1605); but it is doubtful whether the phrase in the Ain-i-Akbari of Abul Eazl does not rather refer to the Arab dagger with its deep sheath, containing both blade and haft. If the for to the Arab dagger with its deep sheath, containing both biade and haft. If the traveler prefer it he may buy a sword thin and flexible as the Toledo colled blades, to wind around his waist in his cummerbund. If he be a fakir, the ornamental crutch which uphoids his arm while he edifies the faithful by silent reflections upon the syllable Om will contain a sharp-pointed quadrangular blade for the confusion of the unbeliever. Even lovely women in the harem carry a miniature katar, with H-shaped grip, or a diminutive peshkabz-double-curved, single-edged, atrocious.

In Mysore and Hyderabad the bich'hwa (scurpion)—the double-curved misericorde of the East—is carried by lower classes hidden up the sieeve, and is made right or left handed to suit all tastes. It is a favorite and effectual weapon of assassination, being driven downward from behind, inside the collar-bone, and is sometimes double-bladed and poisoned, the poison being carried in a suitable hollow in the hilt. The double curve of the blade, derived from that of a cow's horn, and resembling that o' a scorpion's sting, recurs in the khanjar and chilanum and throughout Arganalstan. With a variety of this weapon, Lieut. Willis was killed in the battle at Candahar.

The strangest of secret arms is, perhaps, the bagh nakh or tiger-claw of the Malaratand throughout Afghanistan. With a variety of this weapon, Lieut. Willis was killed in the battle at Candahar.

This preparation of antimony, applied by the Egyptians to this day to blacken the eyesilds, both above and below the eye, necessitates the use of a small probe of wood ivory or silver, tapering toward the end, but blunt. This implement is moistened sometimes with rose water, then dipped in the powder, and drawn along the edges of the eyelids. Something of the same character, stiblum, also prepared from antimony, was used similarly by the luxurious Babylonians, and they were accustomed also to rub their skins with pumicestone to make it smooth.

The Greeks darkened the eyebrows as well as the eyelids with Egyptian khol, and the Romans had a great variety of cosmeties. Ovid, the poet of love, in a book treating upon this subject, a fragment of which has come to us, has given a recipe for the complexion which was composed of barley and on this subject, a fragment of which has come to us, has given a recipe for the complexion which was composed of barley and bean flour, eggs, hartshorn, ground narcissus bulbs, gum, Tuscan seed and honey. "Every woman who spreads this paste upon her face will render it smoother and more brilliant than her mirror," he says.

In the far East the eyelids are darkened with soorma, and the eyelashes with kajul, used in the same way as kohl. The soorma is placed inside the lids, and, according to tradition, when the Aimighty commanded woses to ascend Mt. Sinal to show him his countenance, he exhibited it through an opening of the size of a needle's eye, at the sight of which Moses fell into a trance. After a couple of hours, on coming to himself, he discovered the mountain in a blaze, when he descended immediately. The mountain then addressed the Aimighty thus: "What! hast thou set me, who am the least of mountains, on fire?" Then the Lord commanded Moses, saying: "Henceforth shalt thou and thy posterity grind the earth of this mountain and apply it to your eyes."

Since then the custom has prevailed, and the soorma sold in the bazaar of Hindoostan is supposed to be earth coming from Mt. Sinal.

"I have repeatedly asserted," commented a woman the other day, "that I never knew any woman who smoked, and I never met anyone who knew one who did, but I can no anyone who knew one who did, but I can ne longer say so. A case has come home to me in the family of a dear friend in a neighboring city, where the young daughter of the house, a girl of is, it is feared, hopelessy ill from the effects of cigarette smoking. She first smoked in a spirit of foolish sport, but soon became addicted beyond control to the habit. A package a day did not satisfy her, and she is now a wreck, with little prospect of recovery. It has been a terrible reveiation and shock to her mother, who had no suspicion of the fact till her child was almost beyond help. Other mothers ought, perhaps, to be told of the case as a warning to vigilance, though it cannot be possible that it will be often duplicated.

spring of 1886 be obtained control. Ives was now at the height of his glory. In two years he had raised himself from the humble place in Harper & Bros.' office to be a great railroad magnate. He bought a yacht, paying $10,000 in cash, $40,000 in collateral and leaving $27,000 unpaid. No one except one man knew that he straightway hypothecated the yacht for nearly its full value. He set up a splendid establishment. He rode through the country in a handsome private car. He induged in the most extravagant debaucheries. and wherever he went men wondered and wherever he went men wondered the slim, boyish face and figure and the ak blue eyes shining through gold glasses m a cold, calm, never-smiling face. He sessed quietly always and in a way that rested a minister.

from a cold, calm, never-smiling face. He dressed quietly aiways and in a way that suggested a minister.

All that summer of 1696 he was robbing the helpless Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, and all that year and on lato the next year until the crash. He issued common stock, he increased the bonded indebtedness, he stole the cash surplus. He began to complete his scheme for the transcontinental system. The Baltimore & Ohlo was to be the eastern wing of this, and he negotiated successfully with Robert Garrett for its purchase. With $2,000,000 received from the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, he bought an option on it and began to exercise the rights of an owner. The Baltimore & Ohlo inclused the Baltimore & Ohlo telegraph. He got all ready to sell the telegraph system to the Western Union of $3,000,000. But his affairs were rapidly becoming involved. The more he stole the more he had to steal. Capitalists began to lose confidence. Trust companies wanted their money. I ves grew pale and haggard. But he kept on with a bold front, for he had nothing to lose except his liberty. When many were beginning to think the end had come, he suddenly appeared as master of the Vandalia road, with its rich treasury to delve into. And so deeply did he plunge his rapacious hands into it that in about a month he obtained nearly $2,000,000 and brought the road to the verge of ruin.

In July, 1887, misfortunes began to gather about him. Robert Garrett sailed for Europe, taking the $2,000,000 with him and saying that the time of the option had expired and that Ives had not fundied the contract. The Mineral Range stockholders began to clamor, the Cincinnati, damilton & Dayton stockholders began to rab their steepy eyes and shout "thief," the Vandalia people were alert, the New York people of whom he was borrowing were demanding their money.

The wonder is that he held on as long as ne did. He never faltered but brazened it out. He announced with calm confidence that the clamor was all newspaper talk. He lived more extravagantly than ever. Then the Columbia Bank of Philiadelphia falled and Charles Philips fied. This was the final blow. On the morning of Aug. 12 Ives announced that his firm was never stronger and that all rumors to the contrary were lies late in the afternoon of the same day he sent for the report. When they had as sembled in his outs? The energy cheerful, smoking a cigarette.

"What is the news you have tus, Mrs. Ives?" said one.

AGAINST DALTON.

Buling of Secretary Carlisle in the Liquor Guaging Controversy.

The friction between the office of Surveyor of Customs and the wholesale liquor firm of L. & A. Scharff has at last been relieved, and with smiles on his countenance Mr. L. Scharff announced to a Post-Disparch reporter that he had been victorious in the controversy. In evidence he showed two letters—one from the Treasury Department and one from Col. Dalton, Surveyor of Cusletters—one from the Treasury Department and one from Col. Dalton, surveyor of Customs.

The trouble emanated from the very trifling overcharge of 4 cents on a barrel of reimported whisky, according to Mr. Scharff's interpretation of the law. It has been customary with Col. Dalton's predecessors to gauge reimported whisky just as they would the domestic article, that is to charge for every fraction of a gallon greater than a half-gallon and to make no charges on a smaller fraction. Col. Dalton interpreted the law to mean that the exact fraction of a gallon was to be charged for and charged 4 cents more on one barrel than Mr. Scharff thought was right.

The latter straightway addressed a stinging letter to the Surveyor of Customs, and also wrote to the Secretary of the Treasury for a ruling on the case. A reply came from the department referring Mr. Scharff to Col. Dalton, and immediately after the following letter from the latter gentleman:

Mesers. L. & A. Scharf, St. Louis, Mo.:

Messrs. L. & A. Scharf, St. Louis, Mo .:

Mesers. L. & A. Scharf, St. Louis, Mo.:

GENTLEMEN-Replying to your communication of this date I respectfully inform you that I am lustructed by Department letter of the 16th inst. Shat the dutable quantity of reimported domestic whisky will be ascertained in the same maner as the quantity of spirits obtained from a distilling warehouse. Any fractional part of againon amounting to one-haif gallon or over, in cast or package, she house. Any fractional part of againon amounting to one-haif gallon or over, in cast or package, she house. Any fractional part of again amounting to one-haif gallon and any fractional part of the tax of the course will be pursued by this office. Respectfully, Surveyer of Customs.

Mr. L. Scharff exhibited the above letter to the reporter with evident satisfaction at having carried his point. "It was not the amount involved," said he, "for since this trouble began the method we were fighting against has put us in hand $2.35 on ten barrels of the same whisky as the one that created the rub. We opposed the departure from the old custom and have carried our point."

Col. Dalton said, when asked why he had changed the course: "I was simply following the law as defined by the McKinley bill and stuck to it until I recived directions to the contrary from the Department. Those directions were taken from precedent, the Secretary simply referring me to rulings on such cases prior to this. That is the end of it. My duty now is to follow the course indicated by Secretary Carlisle, and I shall make my actions conform to his directions."

IF the Republicans win in November it is to be hoped that they will send men to Congress who have some idea of a Government economically administered. It is a wearisome business for the Democrats, whenever they go into power, to have always to be cutting down and saving to cover the wastefulness and extravagance of their predecessors.

THE New York people are trying to find out where Croker got his great wealth. Well, with a revenue of $4,000,000 a year. furnished Tammany by corporations, salopus and low dives for "protection" he ought to have many opportunities. IF the verdict of the jury in the Pollard-Breckinridge case needed vindication, it could easily be found in the contrast of the conduct of the plaintiff and defendant since the trial. The evident contrition of woman and her desire to remove her shame from the public eye are as much in her favor by contrast with the brazen impudence of the man who is trying to face out his villainy as her remarkable statement on the witness stand as compared with his evident tissue of lies. If there were any doubt that Miss Pollard was the victim of a hypocritical and unscrupulous libertine that contrast of bearing would settle it.

A WANTON SACRIFICE.

The death of William Gannon is another conclusive argument for putting the wires under ground. The duties of a fireman are very dangerous at the best. He takes his life in his hands whenever he goes to a fire. He is a public servant whose duties should not be wantonly made more dangerous by exposing him to needless perils while protecting the property of citizens.

If it were not practicable to bury the wires, if invention had not overcome the obstacles in the way, nothing could be said and no cause of complaint would lie, but in this case the principal, the only real obstacle is the opposition of the wire companies themselves. In other cities this opposition has been overcome by the rough and ready application of sturdy common sense, as when Mayor Grant ordered the poles chopped down several years ago in the main streets of New York, and again a few weeks ago when the same direct argument was employed by the Electrical Board of the city. In St. Louis, unhappily, we have not reached the stage in which such arguments are in order. The fight is made on the preliminary work, which has only just begun. But the labors of the Subway Commission are nearly completed, and we may expect at least a clear programme presented which shall meet all the financial and legal objections urged so strenuously by interested persons. When the report is published we shall probably be enabled to proceed intelligently. After that hard and persistent work will accomplish the result in spite of boodle.

This is, above all else, a question of hu manity. There are business reasons in servants, nor as a matter of dollars and cents can property owners suffer the existence of a danger which doubles insurance rates and discourages the firemen and binders them in their work. As the wires can be put under ground without impairing the efficiency least delay.

ABSENTERISM DID IT.

Doubtless "Czar" Reed's success in adopt a quorum-counting rule when they Frick two months ago when he paid $140, had a majority of ninety, was a brilliant 000 to settle another case of the same personal triumph for him. He worked kind. hard and most adroitly for this "vindication' at the hands or the Democrats who had denounced his "tyranny" only to imitate it when their numbers gave them less excuse than he had. But it was the absentee Democrats who gave him the opportunity of forcing this humiliation upon their party. It was they who deprived it of a quorum when the people had given it ninety more than a quorum.

The best thing about the new rules, therefore, is the provision for compelling attendance by enforcing the old law depriving of their day's pay all who are absent without leave or excuse when the yeas and nays are called on any question. A rigid enforcement of the old law on that subject may even yet save the Democrats a minority vote and counting their silent

This docking of absentees is not only an act of sheer justice to the people, but it will make Representatives accountable to their constituents by preserving a record of each member's inexcusable neglect of duty. The joy of the Republicans over th peech of Senator Hill is universal. Not one discordant note has broken the choru with which the of the extinguished leader of the New York Democracy is greeted by the Republican press. On the other hand scarcely a note of praise varies the monotony of repudiation which is heard in the Democratic camp.

The conclusion seems inevitable, there that Hill's affections have alienated from Democracy by artful Republican party. H seems lost to Democracy forever. There is apparently no possibility of reconciliation and reunion. The two are parted. But strangely enough there is no outward sign of grief on the part of Democracy. Although they have kept company for many years and Hill has claimed first place in Democracy's affections and has tempted to monopolize her favors and keep others out by all sorts of devices the amiable old party lets him go without an audible sigh or a visible tear. The tears of Democracy are the unknown tears and her grief the suppressed grief which Sheridan attributes to Mrs Malaprop.

"I am sure I hated your poor dear uncl before marriage as if he'd been a black-amoor," said the good lady to Lydia Languish, 'and when it pleased Heaven to release me of him, 1'tis unknown what tears I shed."

ROYALTY'S MODERN HEDGE. The report of the wedding of the Grand

Duke of Hesse and the Princess Victoria of Coburg could not easily be classified. It was difficult to tell whether it belonged to social news or the police items. There was nore about the police than about the bridal pair and the guests.

The Russian Czarewitch had a body guard of Russians and the most experienced police agents in Germany attached to his person. The Em peror William was surrounded by cordon of detectives. Queen Victoria, harmless and gentle old lady, had in addition to her special English policemen guard of German policemen. Even the Democratic Prince of Wales was provided with a body-guard and all the quarters of royalty were guarded by myriads of police agents, who were instructed to exercise the utmost precaution. This royal wedding is a fair sample of all events of its kind. Wherever there is a massing of royalty there is a massing of police. Royal visits are occasions for fear and trembling on the part of the police, and royal personages are hedged about no longer with divinity and loyalty. but with armed guards. They are practically shut off from all the enjoyments of ordinary mankind and are kept in constant terror of death.

There is no more suggestive feature o the end of the century than this necessity to guard royalty. Where will it end? There are limits to the guarding of human beings from destruction by their fellows. Crowns that carry with them condemnation to life imprisonment and perpetual fear are not worth their cost. The condition which requires the treatment of the of their service it should be done with the rulers of men as the enemies of mankind is intolerable. Royalty has become ghastly sham which must be ended. Must it be ended in a cataclysm of blood?

A TRADE TRICK.

Commenting on the armor plate frauds one of the Carnegie workmen remarked: "It was a trick of the trade and Mr. Frick got caught at it-that's all."

This is very true-"that's all." Some body tried to play a trick and got caughtwhether or not it was Mr. Frick or Mr Carnegie, or whether those good men were imposed upon by too loyal workmen anxious to enlarge the profits of their employers is yet to be ascertained. That forcing the Democrats of the House to tricks were played was confessed by Mr.

But whoever may be the guilty persons there can be no doubt as to the nature of the offense. If it is true, as charged, that some of our best warships have been fitted out with armor which will not stand the test of war, the men who palmed off the rotten stuff upon the Governmentare guilty of a crime little short of treason. To such men patriotism cannot be anything but a sentimentalist's fad, and honor an artificial and fruitless fancy. Their one god is money, and to that they sacrifice everything held as best and worthiest by unperverted men. The charges can be easily proved or disproved. The plates are all numbered according to a well known and accepted system, and every one of them can be located. Seven hundred defective plates, it is claimed, have already been put in place, some of them in the Monterey and the Indiana. They can be detected by experts without much difficulty.

Nothing short of a complete exposure will be satisfactory at this time. Even royal dignity finds itself occasionally very ridiculous situations. The "Marquise Fontency" relates the story of an acci-act to Queen Victoria when that awkward boy, the son of Lord Mountmorres, was kneel-ing in her presence. In attempting to kiss the royal hand he somehow lost his balance, and clutching the sleeve of her majesty's dress, he brought the stout little lady sprawling to the floor, and she injured her knee. The Queen mildly rebuked the boy and die not make him a page as she had intended. After all, no person should be expected to go through such motions as this boy attempted before any sovereign, and over here we do not feel much sympathy for fallen when it comes down in cases like this.

THOUGH Mrs. Pulliam, the City Treasure of Fort Scott, is short in her accounts, it is selegraphed the Globe-Democrat that her ondsmen "do not suspicion her of approriating the money." If there is anything wrong in Fort Scott it is doubtless the work of some man, and it is to be hoped that he will be "suspicioned" sufficiently to lead to his arrest. To "suspicion" a lady without ubitable facts to back up the "suspicion ing," would be highly unjust.

Mr. David B. Hill is quite dead in the South as a presidential possibility. But we are not sure it is because the people of the South think he has gone back on silver. They are not thoroughly persuaded that that is a fact; or is his loss of consideration there due to anticipation of what his position on the tariff will be. Mr. Hill has played out at the South because he has been found out to be a ma-chine politician, and nothing more. The South has her own machine politicians, and they manage to swim along smoothly enough for a time, but they are always found out after a while, and then the people of the South throw them aside, as they have done Mr. Hill. The machine politician always plays out at the South when he is found out, and that is the reason the South has had enough of Mr. Hill.

Mr. "W. H. He says "he knows a lot of people who went there owing poor men, etc." The gentleman's acquaintances do him honor.
He also said "very few of those that went cared for the so-called music," The gentleman is wrong. St. Louis is fast coming to the front as a musical center and by the intelligence of the audiences in bestowing honors where they were due—by the general character of the audiences—is conclusive evidence that St. Louis people have some appreciation of artists and music as well as the East. The gentleman must femember that something like 25,000 seats were sold during the week, and he can find splendid opportunity for picking out a few of "people whom he knows."

True, it would have done a good deal of good in charitable work, but such an argument is ridiculous. For the $50,000 which he says has been carried from our city the citizens got value received, and they are proud and happy that we have a length been fur-

Overpowering. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I think it is about time something should be done by the citizens and tenants of South St. Louis to suppress the progress which the N. K. Fairbank Soap Co., situated on Second and Convent streets, is making in destroying those people's appetites who are compelled to return home by way of Broadway. Last week, in the evening, I was passing down Fourth street on my way home. I had hardly reached Poplar street, seven blocks north of Convent street, when the stench which is emitted from the chimneys of this place was so great that not only myself but a score of others were compelled to go home by way of Serenth street, and some by way of Eighth street, and on this very same evening two young ladies were taken sick on the street from the effects of this nuisance.

I think, as do hundreds of others, that for the welfare and health of the people, something should be done to drive this terrible element out of town.

In summer—which will soon be here—it is even worse than in winter, and, with the united efforts of the citizens living in that district, much good can be accomplished.

Pirrasung, Pa., April 19 .- Mobs are still rioting in the coke region, and although there is no prospect of their winning the battle against the operators, the men are not willing to give up the fight; errests are made every day, and hunger will eventually compel the strikers to come to

It does not take long to tell the nistory of the troubles and their cause in the Pennsyl-vania cote fields, though want and suffaring stand out in every chapter. The M. O. Frick Cote Co., which operates 9,140 of the 17,000 coke ovens in the district, put a new wage and being compelled to return the 33.60 thus earned for $2.50 worth of stale provisions and shoddy clothing and rent, there could be but one result. With footstops the imported aliens rose against their masters.

For three days a reign of terror prevailed throughout the Connellsville coke region. Hordes of half-starved, frensied Huns and Slave swarmed over the coke belt from Uniontown to Mount Pleasant, rading and wrecking plants, driving off workmen or forcing them to join the strikers.
The wage schedule for 1892 and 1893 was: Mining, $1.03; drawing coke, 58 cents; drivers, $2, and other wages in proportion. At this schedule the men when working full time earned from $1 to $1.50 per day. The average price of coke in 1898 was $1.50 per ton. The output for 1893 was: $3.50 per tons, valued at $7.593,157. In 1892 the price averaged $1.50 per ton. The output was $,600,691 tons, valued at $1.571,202. Under the 1894 schedule they starved.
It is claimed that the Frick combine is also trying to force other operators to sell out. In 1891 Frick & Carnegie placed the price of coke so low that a number of competitors were forced to sell out for almost nothing. In this acre, which is now valued at $60 per acre. The illinois Steel Co. is largely interested in the H. C. Frick company and of course is engaged in the combine. Of the 17,618 coke oreas in the Connellaville region the H. C. Frick company owns 9,140, McClure company, 2,408; W. J. Rainey, 1,420; Hecla company, 777; Cochran & Co., 745; Connellaville Coke Co., 607; small operators, 931; iron manufacturers making their own coke, 1,432. It is estimated that the cost of producing a ton of coke under the present wags schedule is 774 cents, leaving a margin of profit to the coke combine of 234 cents.

There are about 16,000 of imported Huns, Poles, Slava and Italians in the Connellaville coke region. The first shipments were made Poles, Slavs and Italians in the Connells ville coke region. The first shipments were made by Frick eleven years ago in order to break up the labor organization and enable him to reduce wages. American labor was driven from the region and a horde of half-starved barbarians have usurped their places. They have been coming by shiploads every year to replace those who have died by accident, disease or starvation.

The company furnishes rough box shantles of four or six rooms, which are rented to the laborers from $12 to $16 per month. Twenty or thirty men sleep in these shantles on coarse mattresses filled with straw. Each man buys his own four and meat, which is cooked by a woman, there usually being one

The Connelisville coke region is a long and narrow strip of territory, stretching away to the north and south of Connelisville, the basin being about twenty-one miles in each direction. The northern boundary is at a point a few miles south of Latrobe, Westmoreland County. The southern outcrop is hear the West Virginia line, at Smithfield, in Fayette County. Fayette County. It is about forty-two miles in length and ranges from one to five miles in width.

During the last two years a complete survey of the region was made by the H. C. Frick Coke Co. and the result embodied in a topographical map, which was a part of this company's exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition. This map shows the region to contain a total coal area of $7,766 acres. Il.,219 acres of which have been mined and 635 acres reserved for buildings and other purposes, leaving a total area of solid coal as yet antouched by the miner's pick of 75,864 acres. There is a total area of coal land north of Connellsville, 73.1 square miles; total surface area of the region, 137.2 square miles; total surface area of the region, 137.2 square miles. These figures show a greater acreage than has been popularly supposed. Approximate estimates have placed the unmined coal as low as 32,000 acres, and predictions were freely exhausted in two or three decades. Actual measurement and computations show these guesses to have been wide of the mark. Instead of 3,000 acres remaining there are 75,000, sufficient to keep the region solong, at its present rate of production, for more than sixty years to come.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19.—Comment as been caused by the announcement that mater White of California favors the new ess treaty. To the correspondent the tor has given the reasons for his attitude on this subject as follows:

"The treaty recognizes the validity of the Geary and McCreary acts and explicitly declares that the Chinese Government will not object to their enforcement. This is a substantial gain, because the Supreme Court sustained the validity of the Geary law by a mere majority, and one of the justices whose vote determined the case has died, so that all recognize the uncertainty of a d presentation to that tribunal.

provision whereby the United States agrees to furnish annually to China the times of our citizens, including mission-ies who reside there, is in effect a guarantee by the Chinese Empire that Americans will not be disturbed. Missionaries need bave no solicitude hereafter. While the Chiese Government is not friendly to American residents, the effect of the provision is to make it liable, pecuniarily and otherwise, for injuries to our people there. The Chinese do not enjoy paying damages."

As to the criticism against the privilege of a hinese laborer having a wife, child or parent in the United States, property or

'The provision only applies to laborers who are registered. I ad-mit that a Chinaman will a pear to anything, but in this case his veracity is passed upon by an American official. Individuals professing to be interested have announced that the roposed treaty will open the door to a Chi-ese invasion, but no laborer can enter without a return certificate, and if we admit that there may be substitution (which I do not concede), the number of laborers cannot be increased, because one certificate represents Increased, because one certificate represents one man.

"The right to return was explicitly recognized by Congress in the Morrow act of 1888, and the legislation was at that time considered by anti-Chinese advocates as progressive. The present treaty is drawn up on lines of the Morrow bill, and as soon as it becomes evident that the Chinese Government intends to ratify it, a bill can be passed providing for the enforcement of the treaty provisions and containing proper and stringent regulations and penalties. The Morrow bill contained a provision for photographs, which is now supplied by the Geary and McCreary laws.

"The Chinese Government declined to agree to the treaty of 1888 upon the ground that the certificate issued to a departing Chinese laborer should be granted by a Chinese Consul. Mr. Cleveland said in his message to Congress, dated Oct. 1, 1888, approving the Scott exclusion act, that the obvious effect of this contention would be practically to place the execution of the treaty beyond the control of the United States."

Princess Victoria and the Grand Duke of Hesse Wed.

It Was a Most Brilliant and Very Impressive Ceremonial.

THE REGINNING OF THE CEREMONY DE LAYED UNTIL 12:30 P. M.

In the Procession Emperor William Es corted the Duchess of Coburg and Ex-Empress Frederick Followed Alone-Frince of Wales and the Czarewitch Came Next-The Bride Entered Last, Supported by Her Father and Brother.

CORDER. April 19.-The weather was splendid here to day for the royal wedding of the Princess Victoria and the Grand Duke of Hesse. The city is packed with royal and imperial guests, foreign visitors and German sightseers. Every building is decorated in some manner, even the most modest cottages having at least some slight display of bunting to the breeze, while the important thoroughfares and prominent buildings are buried beneath decorations of all descriptions and colors. At first the sky was overcast, but early in the day the sky beamed gloriously upon this temporary head quarters of representatives of nearly all the imperial and royal families of Europe.

The 1st dragoon regiment band filled the playing in front of the Edinburgh Palace. The Schloss Platz and the terraces overlooking the park were so thronged at 10 o'clock this morning that the police were compelled to drive persons away in order to prevent dangerous crushes.

according to the ceremonial decided upon by Queen Victoria (all arrangements having been submitted to her in Florence) the mar-riage was to take place at noon precisely in the private chapel of the Ducal Schloss, with full state in the Lutheran style.

Following German precedents, there were no bridemaids, but the bride was supported by her younger sisters. The private chapel of the schloss was thoroughly re-decorated for the occasion, and as the wedding took place on Primrose Day primroses entered largely into the interior decorations, these flowers having been sent from England for chapel by the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (the Duke of Edinburgh), father of the bride, and was escorted to an arm-chair in the front row of the distinguished guests and next to Emperor William of Germany, by whose side was the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, sister to the Czar).

There was some delay in the proceedings and consequently it was 12:30 p. m. before the ceremony commenced, but it was a most wedding procession Emperor William escorted the Duchess of Coburg and ex-Empress Frederick followed alone. The Prince Wales and the Czarewitch came next, walk ing together. The bridegroom entered with his ing together. The bridegroun entered with his supporters, his uncle, Prince Henry of Hesse, and his brother-in-law, Prince Henry of Prussia. The bride came in last, supported by her father and brother, and accompanied by her sisters. The Prince of Wales sat besides ex-Empress Frederick of Germany (a granddaughter of Queen Victoria). Then sides ex-Empress Frederick of Germany (a granddaughter of Queen Victoria). Then came the Czarewitch.

These distinguished guests occupied front seats on the other side of the aisle, corresponding with those of Queen Victoria, Emperor William and the Duchess of Coburg. Other important personages filled the rows behind each of the royal and imperial nobilities already mentioned, but the court officials and ministers in attendance remained standing throughout the ceremony. Among the other distinguished personages present were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Viadimir of Russia, and his wife, formerly the Princess Elizabeth of Hesse-Darmstadt; the Princess Alix of Hesses, the Crown Prince and Princess of Roumania, the hereditary Prince and Princess of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince and Princess of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince George of Greece, Prince Aribert of Anhalt, and Princes Henry and Louis of Battenburg.

The sun, shining through the chapel windows upon this distinguished assemblage, ladies in court toilets, sparking with jewels, their bright dresses contrasting beautifully with the gorgeous uniforms of the male portion of the guests, had a magic effect.

The elaborate floral decorations, the grandeur of the old chapel and the natural solemnity of the surroundings formed a magnificent tout ensemble, which has not been equalled by recent years in any country of the Order of the Garter, and upon her head of the world.

Queen Victoria wore the broad blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, and upon her head sparkled a magnificent crown of diamonds.
Her Majesty remained seated throughout.
Her age and infirmities prevented her from standing when all the other wedding guests arose during certain portions of the marriage service.
The General Superintendent of the Army

rai Superintendent of the Lutherar Church, Pastor Mueller, officiated and was assisted by the Court Chaplain of the Grand Duchy of Hesse and five local clergymen. After the address had been delivered the After the address had been delivered the bride and bridegroom plighted their troths and the wedding rings were exchanged. Then came the benediction, after which Mendelsohn's "Wedding March" was grandly played and the ceremony was at an end.

Law and Order League.

Circulars were sent out to-day to all the ministers and clergymen of every denomina-tion in the city asking them to announce that on the evening of April 24 a mass-meeting will be held at Chatsworth Hall, Seventeenth and Olive streets, for the purpose of organizing a society for the prevention of crime-Each church is requested to send five or more delegates to this meeting which will be addressed by Mayor Walbridge, Hon. Nathan Cole, Dr. Leon Harrison, Archbishop J. J. Kain, Dr. John Matthews, Bishop D. S. guttle, Hon. E. O. Stanard, Rev. John Snyder and Dr. S. J. Niccolis. TANK FELL ON HIM.

This Morning.

"Ted" Ryan, a laborer 50 years of age, amployed by the De La Vergne Refrigerating Machine Co., was killed beneath a heavy tank, at the Burlington freight deing Machine Co., was killed beneath a heavy tank, at the Burlington freight depot, Main and Carr streets, at 9 o'clock this morning. The truck was of heavy boiler fron, 8 feet long, 7 feet wide and 7 feet high. It weighed $,500 pounds and is a feed-water arrangement for treating water chemically praparatory to its refrigeration. Ryan and three other men were employed in shifting the tank from a wagon to a flat - car for shipment to Guthrie, Okla. A heavy chain belonging to the De La Vergne Co. was attached to the tank and was passed through the chain block on the boom of the iron crane on the freight platform. The huge vessel had been valsed from the wagon and was being showed over toward the car. Without warning it toward the 'car. Byan and several ribs were broken, his abdomen was crushed and life was squeezed out of him. Men ran to the ground. It rested on the unfortunate man's body and several ribs were broken, his abdomen was Crushed and life was squeezed out of him. Men ran to the scene of the accident from all directions and lifted the tank. Ryan, unconscious but not yet dead, was pulled out. He died in five minutes. Dr. Kearney, emergency physician at the Third District Station, was summoned, but Ryan was dead when he reached the place. The doctor sent the body to the Morgue, Ryan leaves a widow and two children. He lived near the neighborhood of the South Side race track, at Russell and Missouri avenues, and owned his home. He worked for the De La Vergne company for nine years and was a valued employe.

HIS $600 DIAMOND STOLEN.

For the past few days detectives and uniformed police officers have been trying to recover a $600 diamond stud, and to discover, if possible, the person who stole it. The investigation has been carried on very secretly and wherever the search has been extended, the parting on very secretly and wherever the search has been extended, the parting injunction to all is to keep their mouths shut concerning the missing diamond and the man who lost it.

A Post-Disparch reporter learned of the theft of the diamond and ascertained that a certain prominent gentleman known in the precincts of West Chestnut treet as "Col. Warren," together with several friends of his of equal prominence in this ofty, were out for a lark on last Saturday night and imbibed too freely of the sparkling champagne. The Colonel and his friends visited the house 2118 Chestnut street, which is conducted by Nina Lucas, and while there he carried the stud in his vest pocket. There was more wine broken, and the party left and went to a house on the other side of the street. There a conversation about diamonds was started and the Colonel, running his fingers into his vest pocket, said he would show a diamond that would knock them all out. But he searched in vain for the spark. Immediately there was a great hubbub, and though both houses were diligently searched, no trace of the valuable stone could be found.

Finally the theft was reported to the police and Chief Desmond has been giving the investigation of the robbery his personal attention ever since, but without gaining the slightest clew to its whereabouts.

without gaining the slightest clew to its whereabouts.

The missing diamond is said to have a history which is interesting. It is the same one, it is claimed, that Louis J. Silv. the alleged embezzler once wore, and it is stated, that it was on this stone, through a certain well-known liveryman, that Mr. Silva obtained a loan before leaving St. Louis for Canada. From the liveryman "Col. Warren" purchased the gem.

FR. CORBETT HEARS FROM LINCOLN. Archbishop Hennessy Is Investigating Financial Affairs.

Rev. Fr. M. J. Corbett of Palmyra, Neb. Bishop Bonacum's antagonist, is yet in the city. He and his attorney, tMr. Warren of Nebraska City, Neb., will leave for home tonight. Fr. Corbett was again reticent to-day s to the object of his visit to St. Louis. He said that he was not here to verify the charge that Bishop Bonacum had published in a St Louis German paper a letter denying that he Louis German paper a letter denying that he (the Bishop) had signed a truce at the instance of Mgr. Satolli. Fr. Corbett stated that he had received a telegram from Lincoln, stating that Archbishop Hennessy was in that city to investigate the diocesan finances and to hear those who had personal grievances against Bishop Bonacum. The telegram indicated that the Archbishop was not disposed to try Bishop Bonacum on the charges preferred by the priests. Fr. Corbett did not know whether Archbishop Hennessy was acting on the authority of Mgr. Satolli or not.

ARMOR PLATE FRAUDS.

The Whole Subject May Be Ventilated by

Congressional Investigation. WASHINGTON, D. C., Ap retary Herbert proposes to do concerning he new charges of fraudulent practices in filling Government contracts for armor plates at the Carnegie mills is not known now in his possession, and it is supposed that

Congressman Cummings, Chairman of the House Naval Committee, has introduced a resolution calling for a Congressional inves tigation of the whole subject of the manu facture of armor plates by the Carnegle com pany, and the expose may hasten the inves-

Little by little the facts are leaking out in connection with the first investigation by Secretary Herbert. It has now come to light that the Secretary prepared a statement based on Capt. Sampson's report of the investigation, in which the Secretary indicated his intention of forfeiting the Carnegle contract in addition to demanding a rebate of $50,000. Subsequently, as is known, Messrs. Carnegle and Frick appealed to the President. The President then directed the Secretary to rewrite his report and decided that the rebate to be required of the Carnegles should be 10 per cent on the price of the armor manufactured in the period during which the irregular practices were continued. Thus the Carnegles were not only saved their contracts, but got off cheaper than Secretary Herbert in tended they should.

The President has been very sharply criticised by members and Senators who have taken an interest in this matter, and it has been said more than once that had the President accepted Secretary Herbert's recommendations and assessed a fine for the entire period during which plates had been manufactured, there would have been no further scandal. Little by little the facts are leaking out in factured, there would have been no further scandal.

It is now probable that a Congressional investigation, as well as an inquiry by a special Naval Board, will be made into the charges brought by McLuckle and his associates, and numerous plates will probably be taken on the new ships and put to a ballistic test at Indian Bead, in order to determine whether they are up to standard. Should any irregular work be discovered, the Carnegie company will probably be required to make good the entire expenses of the test and to furnish new plates of the proper quality. M'LUCKIE'S STATEMENT. PITTSBURG, Pa., April 19.-John McLuckie,

Pittsburg, Pa., April 19.—John McLuckie, one of the men who has made amidavits concerning the alleged frauds practiced on the Government in making armor piates in the Carnegie steel mills, tells an interesting story describing the methods employed in "doctoring" the plates. He says:

"It has been a common practice when a defective plate was discovered to lay it aside and cover it up with other plates until a convenient season. Sunday evening is usually the time selected for re-treating or plugging one of these defective plates. The Government inspectors are never present sunday nights.

telitale marks.

"Sometimes in working a plate in the finishing shop during the day one of the mill inspectors would discover a blow-hole so deep as to render the plate useless. The men would be told to suspend operations, and a "couble' would be dropped into the hole. A cobble is a place, of metal which would ner. cobble is a piece of metal which would par-tially stop up the hole, leaving it perhaps four or five inches deep from the surface. Then a wire would be got, and when it was placed in the hole it would show, of course, only this depth of four or five inches. The inspector would be shown the hole and the wire, and when told of its alleged depth he would naturally say, 'Well, that's not se-rious, plug it up.'

would naturally say, 'Well, that's not serious, piug it up.'

'The orders in the mill always have been to call the inspectors whenever a defective plate is discovered. If the inspector declares the plate too defective to work it is ordered laid to one side. Instead of being thrown away, however, it is treated on a Sunday night in the shaping shop.

'In our affidavits we do not charge collusion between the inspectors and the company. The fact is, however, that they have been careless, to say the least. They have always been pleasant fellows, who chummed with the skilled men in the old days before the strike, and everybody was making plenty with the skilled men in the old days before the strike, and everybody was making plenty of money. None of them was ever on duty in the mill after dark, although the furnaces and shops worked night and day. Chief inspector Wilmer, who has been in charge since september last, lives in Pittsburg. He has a room og Penn avenue, and takes his breakfast and dinner at the Pittsburg Club. The inspecters from the start have relied upon the men to furnish them with the proper metal for testing, and the men, under orders from the Superintendent, have systematically deceived them."

the head of the diocese. The case against the Archbishop is now complete and the papers are ready, it is said, for transmission to Rome. The belief is Archbishop Satolli will himself carry the documents to the Pope. It is also said on the same authority that Archbishop Corrigan has been "invited" to visit Rome. The meaning of this "invited ton" is obvious.

Among the charges which are to be made against Archbishop Corrigan is one that he employed the editor of a Catholic newspaper published in this city to carry on the literary part of the warfare. This editor has been called the "press agent" of the Archbishop. He is add evoted that he owed a higher duty to Rome than to the Archbishop. He is said to have furnished all the facts in his possession to the Apostolic Delegate. The documents have been in Washington for some days, and they are being formulated in the regular way, so that nothing can interfere with their proper presentation to the Pope.

STORY THE "GRAND OLD MAN'S" REMARKABLE PERSONALITY.

Drom the London Daily Telegraph.

Upon Dac. 29, 1899, William Ewart Gladstone, the fourth son of John Gladstones, for such, until 1833, when the final "s" was dropped by royal license, was the family hame—first saw the light in Rodney street, Liverpool. He was born in the same house as that in which his subsequent friend and colleague, Lord Cardwell, came into the world in 1812. We are told by Mr. Robert Bell that when Mr. Canning went down to Liverpool, which he represented in the last five Parliaments of which he was a member, it was generally his custom to take up his residence at Seaforth House, as the guest of Mr., afterwards Sir John Gladstone, who even at that time had become conspicuous among the merchants of Liverpool, seaforth House was the suburban villa a few miles out of Liverpool, to which Mr. Gladstone's father moved from Rodney street.

"The room which George Canning occupied," says Mr. Bell, "overlooked the sea, and here he would sit for hours gasing on the open expanse before him, while young Gladstone, who was destined subsequently to obtain such distinctions in the councils of his sovereign, used to be playing on the Strand below."

Mr. Gladstone went to Eton at the age of 12, in 1821, and became fag to his eldest brothers, subsequently Sir Thomas Gladstone, and to a great friend of the latter, by name Parr. In due course he had for fags Mr.

Hamilton again. Prapostor, roared out Heath, louder than ever, write down Hamilton for breaking my windows, lying and swearing."

An old friend of Mr. Gladstone records that from the lirst the father with intuitive acuteness and foresight discerned the extraordinary promise of the boy. The prosperous circumstances of the boy. The prosperous circumstances of sir John Gladstone—we prefer to give him this title, although it was not conferred upon him until a much later date in the life of his distinguished son—enabled him to send William Ewart Gladstone to Eton. Not many months were needed to reveal the quality of the brilliant young Etonian. His youth, serious without austerity, bright, elastic, and perservering, and singuiarly marked by that "moral thoughtfulness" which the greatest of English schoolmasters, Dr. Arnoid, so desired to cultivate in his pupils, gave a faithful presage of his maturer life.

A Yorkshire gentleman, the late Mr. W. H. Rudston, was next to William Ewart Gladstone in the fifth form at Eton, and used to testify that in his distinguished schoolfellow there were no boyish delinquencies to record, no outburst of the animal spirits which ever brought him into trouble with the masters. From the first Mr. Gladstone felt the necessity and appreclated the value of laborious habits, and possessed a capacity for steady and untiring application which fitted him for giving the utmost practical effect to his varied talents. He never played at games or joined in the sports of other boys, having this characteristic in common with Napoleon, William Pitt, George Canning and Lord Beaconsfield. When, in 1828, Mr. Gladstone was transferred to Oxford, his contemporaries at Christ Church already foretoid that he was destined to ascend the highest round of the political ladder. it necessary to pass arr. Gladstone through a bacis yard into a house which gave exit to another street, and in this way he made his escape from a crowd of too obstreperous admirers.

Nearly every second-hand bookseller in London habitually sends Mr. Gladstone his catalogue. Sometimes he repairs to the shop list in hand and looks at the books he has marked, giving a check at once, which he sometimes writes in the shop, for the amount spent. At one time the most intimate relations subsisted between Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Weston, a bookseller in New Oxford street, close to Tottennam Court road. Sometimes Mr. Gladstone, when about to dine at public dinner in the city, would send his clothes to Mr. Weston's shop and dress there for dinner.

The prodigious variety of books in which he takes interest is as inexhaustible as his ability for mastering their contents. He is particularly proud of his exceptional capacity for arranging books on the shelves in the library, so that they may take up the smallest possible amount of space. This power claimed by him has been questioned by more than one great authority, and especially within the walls of the British Museum. Some forty years ago Mr. Gladstone's old friend, Panizzi, went down to Hawarden, and was asked by his host how many books there were in the Hawarden library. Sir A. Panizzi looked hastily round and guessed 6,000 (the number really being 8,000), at which underestimate Mr. Gladstone's system, known to his private secretaries, prescribes how the letters written by him are to be copied. For instance, a letter written with Mr. Gladstone's own hand, at the bottom of the first page of which as K. Andrew's cross is marked by the writer's pen, is to be copied into a book. An upright cross, again, means that the copy is to be made on a separate sheet of paper, which is returned into Mr. Gladstone's own hand, at the bottom of the first page of which a St. Andrew's cross is marked by the writer's pen, is to be copied into a book. The Pittsburg Club's Pair of Promising New Players.

THE LATTER WAS THE WONDER OF THE ASSOCIATION IN 1891.

George Van Haltren Released to Make Room for Stenzel-Manager Buckenbarger Predicts a Close Race for the Pennant-Charles C. Maffitt Quits the Turi-Sullivan on Corbett and Jackson.

Manager Buckenberger and his Pittsburg

Pirates, so named because the club included many contract jumpers during the brotherhood year, arrived here from Indianapolis this morning. The team is composed of the following players. Catchers, Mack and following players. Cutchers, State of Sugden; pitchers, Killen, Ehret, Terry, Knell, Lukens, Colcolough and Nicholls; infielders, Beckley, Bierbauer, Glasscock and Lyons, and outfielders, Donovan, Stenzel and Smith. Sugden takes George Miller's place behind the bat and Stenzel replaces George Van Haitren in the outfield. These are the only changes in the make-up of the club, as compared with last year, the Glasscock-Shugart trade having been effected during the progress of the 1893 championship season. Both Manager Buckenberger and Capt. Donovan think well of their chances in the League rennant contest this year. According to the former, the race is going to be much more of an even break all around than base ball enthusiasts have witnessed in years. He believes his own club, Cleveland, New York and possibly Philadelphia are going to give Roston a hard "rub," with Brookly, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, Louisville, having been effected during the progress Boston a hard "rub," with Brookly, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, Louisville, innert and Washington constituting the second division. The Pittsburg "fans" want three games from St. Louis, but whether Buckenberger's men will be able to satisfy their demands remains to be seen. Bucken-berger thinks well of his new cutfielder, Jake Stenzel, who heads the club's batting stenzel is a Cincinnati boy, and his terrific stenzel is a Cincinnati boy, and his terrific stick work was the feature of Pittsburg's playing towards the latter part of last season. It was to make room for Stenzel on the regular team that induced the Pittsburg management to sell George Van Haltren to New York. Phil Knell, one of the Culv's new pitchers, will be remembered as the left-handen wonder of the Columbus American Association team in 1891. He has been doing good work in California the last two seasons.

Throwing Bouquets at Comiskey.

When the question of who is the best manager and field general in the profession is discussed there are only two names in the base ball world that are ever considered. One of them is Adrian C. Anson and the other is our own Charles A. Comiskey, writes Harry Weldon, an enthusiastic Cincinnati admirer of the old St. Louis Browns' pilot.

"A good workman is known by the Calips under his bench" and a good captain soon have field triumps to their credit that so far eclipse all others that they are in a class of their cwn. It is not the purpose of this article to draw comparisons between these men, but to simply pay tribute to one of them. Charles Comiskey is a born leader. He has all the attributes that have made some men Generals, others railroad kings and still others political bosses. He has courage without rashbosses. He has courage without rashbosses. He has courage without rashbosses, and still others political bosses. He has courage without rashbosses, the has courage without rashbosses, the has courage without rashbosses, the has courage without rashbosses. He has courage without rashbosses, the has been builted and the wear of the party of doing the right thing at the right time.

Base Ball Gossip.

Connaughton, the new Boston player, has a pretty big name, but he's not any larger than Hugh Puffy. Morgan Murphy, it is said, is coming back to that catching form that made him the talk of the hase ball world in 1890-34, and up to the time when he took sick in 1892. He is getting back his quick.

Tom Ramsey, the one-time famous left-hander, is said to be pitching remarkable ball in the South. He has regained all of his parziling curves, and his appearance indicates that he has forsworn the flowing bowl, which practically ruined his base ball career.

STENZEL AND KNELL | nothing left but a pair of 2-year-olds, one by vanguard, dem Folly and the other by Vanguard, dam Folly, and the other by Luke Blackburn, dam Rhyme. The latter is a small filly with an inwardly curving front ankie. This deformity, however, does not laterfere with her work, and Mr. Maffitt may race her this season. He has a sentimental interest in the filly, her dam Rhyme having campaigned in his colors several years ago. The Vanguard-Folly youngster is a smart-looking colt, much more so than his stable companion, and Sayers assures Mr. Maffitt that the animal is certain to win himself out. "Tommy gives me this story every spring, however," said the new Fair Association's First Vice-President, "and I don't know but that I will present him with the pair and retire. I bred the Rhyme filly myself, and should like to race her this year, but then I do not believe she will amount to much with that froat leg handicap."

St. Louis had quite a contingent of wealthy men, including outo stifel, Charles C. Maffitt and Robert J. and Joseph D. Lucas on the tuff two seasons ago, but with the retirement of Mr. Moffit, Mr. Lucas is the only one left. Otto Stifel, who is a son of the North St. Louis brewey baren, and Joseph D. Lucas quit last year. The latter is now confining himself to breeding exclusively.

General Manager Burke has decided to make the Inaugural at six furlongs for six year-olds and upwards, a weight for age event 10 pounds below the scale, with 7 pound penalty for winners of a race this year valued at $1,000. Weight for age is expected to be more popular with foreign owners who know what to expect in coming here. This would not be the case if the inaugural was made a handicap. The local entries to the Inaugural are expected to include such good ones as Fred Foster's pair, Dr. Rece and Eloroy, W. H. Eabb's Guido, Dan Lamasner's Service, the Highland Grove Stock Farm's Highland, Curl Bros. Soundmore, the Charter Oak Stable's Ray S. and some of Barney Schrieber's cracks. He has plenty, and will no doubt be liberal in entering them.

Trainer Jimmy McCormack's remarks about Lamplighter will be read with interest by all race-goers. He says: "Lamplighter is doing as well as ought to be expected after confidence born of success. He is not the in-experienced, hesitating, rawboned youngster whom the Australian met four years ago, but a powerful, well-developed, self-reliant man, chock full appearance indicates that he has forsworm the flowing bowl, which practically ruined his base ball cares?

Sam Crane has joined the crusaders in the fight for the instruction of the trapped fly. He says: "The sam Crane has joined the crusaders in the fight for the less to rather than the call for the less than the call for rian has the better of the big black in point of age, and naturally possesses more vitality and endurance. HARDING COMING TO AMERICA. The English Single Scuil Champion

After Gaudaur's Scalp. Private information from England is to the effect that W. J. Harding, the champion oarsman of Great Britain, will sail for America in the near future. Harding is after Jake Gaudaur's scalp, and he is expected to challenge the American champion immediately upon his arrival here. If the match is arranged Mr. James A. St. John of this city arranged Mr. James A. St. John of this city may furnish the side stake for Gaudaur, who has always been his protege. It is not known whether Harding intends to bring his partner, Thomas suilivan, and the New Zeaiand champion, to this country with him, but if he does a match double scuil contest between the pair and Gaudaur and his partner, Eddie Durnan, is sure to be arranged. Should Mr. St. John back the American pair in this contest, it is to be hoped, he will insist upon the race being rowed in this vicinity.

SALE OF THE VIGILANT.

Howard Gould Buys the American Cup Defender for $25,000. New York, April 19.—George Gould says that he and his brother Howard dave bought the Vigilant for $25,000. They had no plans for the future, he added, but they would race her if they got an opportunity.

Thiebaut Bauer, ex-world's champion Grace-Roman wrestler, and one of the first instructors of Wm. Muldoon, retired champion, is now a successul California fruit grower.

An effort is being made by President James K. Sullivan of the Metrop litau Division, Amateur Athletic Association, to induce Frank Bacon, the amateur champion of England, to come to this country and compete in all the big meets. It is doubtful it Bacon will come, however. He is anxious to meed Conneff, but he wants the race runnin England. Prof. Bill Clark has imported two swimming teachers from the New York Athletic Club for the coming season at his natatorism, Nineteenth and Pine streets; which opens to-day.

THE PRINCETON DINNER.

University Club Members Not Pleased With Published Comments.

The members of the University Club was are not members of the Princeton Alumni Joseph J. Burke is authority for the statement that John J. Carter's name was mentioned very flatteringly around New York shortly before he (Burke) came West in connection with the Presiding Judgeship on the new jockey club tracks. This position, it will be remembered, was offered Judge Burke, who could not accept it on account of previously made Western engagements. Judge Carter is highly thought of down East and his New York friends are very anxious to have him brought there, says Mr. Burke. ness, by invitation not of their own seeking, were screened off like a band whose services were desirable, but whose presence should be concealed.

President Marshall S. Snow of the University Club was not prepared to discuss the Princeton Club's treatment of reporters. The University Club, as a club, had nothing to do with the dinner," said Prof. Snow. to do with the dinner," said Prof. Snow.

"It was given in the University Club-house, but just as independently of the club as it would have been, had it been held at the Southern Hotel. I presume the object in placing the screen at the lower end of the room was that the presence of the reporters might not break in upon the privacy of the club members and its guests. As to the request of the Princeton Club for the publication of their President's speech, it was actuated, I presume, by a desire that the individuality of their college should be impressed upon this community through a discussion of the institution by its president. But I do not believe any discourtesy was intended. Mr. John D. Davis, President of the Princeton club, is a gentleman, and I do not believe would knowingly commit any discourtesy to the press.

"The University club is purely social in its character, and while it always imparts any information sought by the members of the press, it does not court publicity."

"Was the Princeton Club dinner given entirely under the control of the club?"

"It was given by the Princeton Club with the University service, cooks and waiters. The University Club gave a room in which the annual meeting and election were neid, and then surrendered possession of the dining-room for the evening. The remainder of the club, as usual." WHOLESALE POISONING

Charged Against Mms. Jomaux, Daughter

of Gen. Jules Ablay. ANTWERP, April 19.—Belgium is very much excited over the arrest of Mme. Henri Jomaux, daughter of Gen. Jules Ablay and wife of the Chief Engineer of Bridges and Roads. She is accused of poisoning her sister, her brother and her uncle. The two former were heavily insured in her favor and the latter was expected to leave her a large the latter was expected to leave her a large share of her estate.

The prosecution is being made at the instance of the Gresham Life Insurance Co, which concern had taken the risks on Mme. Jomaux' brother and sister. Mme. Jomaux' sister died in 1892. The cause of death was supposed to be grip. She had just been insured for 70,000 francs.

On March 16, 1893, Jacques von der Kerchove, Mme. Jomaux' uncie, died in a supposed fit of apoplexy at a banquet. He was about to marry his mistress and thus turn away his fortune from his blood relations.

Eight days ago Alfred Ablay, a brother to Mme. Jomaux, died very suddenly at his sister's house. Heart disease was the cause, they said, but the fact that he had just been insured for 120,000 francs made the insurance company suspicious, and the result has been that all the bodies have been exhumed and polson has been found in the mail.

Several Bold Robberies on the Steamer City of Hickman.

LOSSES REPORTED TO THE POLICE AND SEVERAL ARRESTS MADE.

Wm. Failey, a Colored Man, Who Tool Fassage From New Orleans, Suspected of Being the Robber-Terrorised His Wife-Police News, on the steamer City of Hickman during its arrived this morning at 1:30 o'clock. The police are working on the case and have already several suspects under arrest. The robberies, as near as can be learned.

St. Louis. Joseph Jeppe, Harry Hamberger and Louis Conover all boarded the boat at Cairo last night as deck passengers. They went to sleep after the steamer pulled out and this morning, when they were aroused, as the steamer pulled into the whart at the foot of Chestnut street, Jeppe, Hamberger and Conover found that their clothing had almost been cut off their persons. Jeppe's vest and pants pockets were laid open and his gold watch valued at $50 and $4 in money were stolen. Harry Hamberger's trousers pockets also dissected and rifled were also dissected and rifled of their contents, consisting of $9.75, while Louis Connors suffered a similar fate, losing a gold watch worth $100. A number of other deck passengers had their pockets cut, but fortunately did not lose anything. Louis Thornton, a negro, one of this number, claims that he was awakened from a sound slumber by feeling a hand in his pocket. He looked up and saw, so he says, a negro named William Balley, who had come North from New Orleans as a passenger, leaning over him.

The robbery was not discovered, or rather reported, until the passengers had nearly all left the boat. Then Officers Smith, O'Brien and O'Donnell of the Central District were dispatched at once to the Levee. Wm. Balley was taken into custody, along with Mollie Blauton and Lucy Stone, all colored, as suspects. These persons were all on board the steamer as deck passengers. Another negro, known as "One Hundred Dollar Bill," a well known police character of the Third District, was on the vessel and made his escape. He is said to have given Jeppe's watch to the freman of the steamer, who turned it over to the police to-day.

Terrorized His Wife.

Terrorized His Wife.

Alfred May, who about a year ago in a fight with his wife bit a piece of her ear off and, according to the story, swallowed the and, according to the story, swallowed the piece, was arraigned before Judge Morris to day charged with idling. May was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Heath of the Central District on complaint of Airs. May, Of late May has become rather violent in his conduct towards his wife, and has been threatening to kill her and then suicide. For several days past he has been lounging about her home on Market, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, annoying her with threats, and she has been afraid to leave the house to obtain work to support her four small children. Judge Morris fined May $100 and costs.

EXCITING DUEL.

Burglars Caught in the Act of Blowing Safe.

AURORA, Ill., April 18 .- Safe blowers operated in the office of the Standard Oil Co. to day, and were caught in the act by Frank Wolfe, the driver, who lives near the office, and heard the noise of the explosion.

Wolfe opened fire on the robbers, who exchanged shots, and an exciting duel ensued but no one was injured.

The robbers fled without the cash they were after. Wolfe's house and the office were riddled with bullets.

VICTORY FOR THE MEN.

committeeman Martin's View of the Brewers' Broken Agreement.

Executive Committeeman H. B. Martin o National Union of Brewery Workmen. He left last Saturday for a tour of organization in the middle Southern States. Mr. Martin is jubilant over the turn of workmen and the St. Louis Brewing Association. "The syndicate will now have to give up the fight or close up shop and quit. We have won a great fight. It means the final victory of union labor, of American workwen over the English syndicate of capitalists. All of Wainwright's big talk means nothing. Men in his position must have adamantine cheek and they have it. That is what they are paid for. Nothing can phase them.

"ties, we feel very jubilant over the dissolution of the old agreement. We have labored hard for this result. Negotiations with Messrs. Lemp and Busch have been long in progress. Now that saloonists can buy beer where they please the force of unionism, the united strength of the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor, aided by the natural sympathies of a people that do not relish bondage to English capital, cannot but win. The St. Louis market will follow others that are slipping from the grasp of Wainwright."

Mr. Martin says he had a very successful trip. Eleven local assemblies were organized in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. Mr. Martin visited Memphis, Vicksburg, Meridian, Jackson, Birmingham, Montgomery and Cairo, Most of the assemblies organized were mixed, comprising several trades. "Encouraging reports are being received from ail quarters," he remarked. "In Alabama and arduous strugsle, but the men are confident. They are fighting convict labor and men over the English syndicate of capitalists.

from all quarters, "he remarked: If Albara bama the coal strike will no doubt be a long and arduous struggle; but the men are confident. They are fighting convict labor and low wages. The Northern Pacific strike will undoubtedly be a success.

"Everywhere the hard times of last year have left the impression that organization is the only salvation of the workingman. The American Railway Union and the Knights of Labor are reaping the benefit. The General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor will meet April 25, at Chicago. After organizing an assembly at Quincy to-morrow, and one probably at Hannibal, Mo., and another at Burlington, Io., I shall retarn to my home at Minneapolis for a few days rest. I may organize an assembly here to-night."

After Ernest Kurzenknabe, National Secretary of the United Brewery Workman of the United States, had called the session to order yesterday Aug. Priestenbach was elected District Master Workman pro tem.

The various temporary committees were appointed and in the afternoon the election of permanent officers resulted as follows: District Master Workman, C. F. Bechtold; Worthy Foreman, August Priesterbach; Worthy Inspector, Joseph Hahn; Secretary and Treasurer. Ernst Kurzenknabe; Statistian, Anton Schulte; Worthy Guide, Wm. Streit.

TEMPLE LOT AT INDEPENDENCE.

W. W. Blair Believes the Mormons Will Be Repaid for Losses. LAMONI, Io., April 19. -Because of the reported disturbance in the minds of some o those residing on the property affected by the Temple Lot decision at Independence, Mo., President W. W. Blair said: "I still believe that the time will come when the Mormon Church will have such in fluence in the State of Missouri that when they make application for redress for losse they make application for redress for losses sustained, etc, the State will be willing to do something for them. In regard to disturbing the title of innocent parties who have bought these lands once occupied by the saints, it should be frowned down but by and by in the good pleasure of our Heavenly Father, I believe that the saints will have such induence that they can be heard by the State, and it will be anxious to redress their wrongs so far as lies in their power. Inasuuch as the United States Government stood by and winked at this work, I believe that when conditions are favorable an effort may be made by our nation to do something to recover its good name and its damaged reputation. coming as this does from the heads of the coming as this does from the heads of the church before its assembled representatives, it is of interest to those who hold suspected

Not Williams but Fcott. Charles Williams, in the employ of Newcomb Bros., decorators, complained to the police of being shadowed by a detective, but C. R. Scott, an acquaintance of his, says Williams has no connection with the case, as scott admits that the latter had made use of Williams' name.

This is significant of the great double value sale at the Globe, northwest corner of Franklin avenue and Seventh street, where $12, $15 and $18 Baitimore tailor-made suits are going at $7.35 and $9,85.

Dan Able will submit his annual report to the Board of Public Improvements to mor-row. The most important recommendation in it will be a wharf for Carondelet.

TEXAS DRUMMERS.

Their Association in Session at Waco-

Waco, Tex., April 19.-The Texas division of the Travelers' Protective Association met here yesterday morning in the Blue Room, the Knights of Labor returned to the city City Hall. Adjournment was taken after the Committee on Credentials had reported and the members proceeded to the Tabernacle where Rev. Sam P. Jones gave them a special sermon.

They were tendered a reception last night by the citizens of Waco at the Pacific Hotel. They elected officers for the ensuing year at this morning's session.

ENGLISH SPORT.

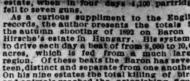

PABTRIDGE SHOOTING THERE 18

FEARLY AKIN TO SLAUGHTER.

Written for the Sunday Post-Disparch.
That Englishmen are mighty hunters of wild game in far quarters of the globe has been youched for by many travelers. But ittle is known, however, of their prowess at home, when the ride is discarded for the shotgun.

When in the country English novels tell us, the ladies are constantly setting forth in pony carriages, with sherry and obscuits, for the mendous quantities of game killed in a drive on this or that estate. A description has been printed, too, of the Prince of Wales, sitting serenely in a chair, regails in mouth, and banging away at partridges to the right and left, while attentive keepers were busy reloading the guns and placing them in his hands. But until now details of this remarkable method of killing game birds have been lacking.

Attempts to establish game preserves are being made by millionaires in different parts of this country—in the Adirondacks W. Sew.

Behind the Hedge. The Marshals met Bruce Miller, one of the ard Webb is projecting a wast estate, and and the fight commenced. This was George Vanderbilt is consummating similar cElroy's ranch, fifteen miles this side of plans in the South—and it is said the English style of shooting will be adopted later on. Timely, then, is the information on the English modes of shooting contained in the first volume of the Fur and Leather Series Retrievers are still in demand, however, in the second style of shooting described by Retrievers are still in demand, however, in the second style of shooting described by the author—walking up the birds. In 'walking up' the keepers and the gunners are aligned across the fields in half-moon fashion. The birds raise before the noisy army, affording a chance for a shot.

Still another strange mode of shooting partridges is the method of using an artificial kite, fashioned like a bird, to drive out the game. Not much is said in its favor; 'that it gives poor, poking shots nobody can

At Newmarket, states Mr. Stuart-Wortley, "distinguished members of the Jockey Club." "distinguished members of the Jockey Club, with many other visitors to the racing metropolis, may be seen on the Sundays and Mondays of the First October, Second October and Houghton Weeks, motionless behind the fir belts of that favored country, ruminating, no doubt, upon the weights, acceptances or odds of the great handicans, but watching the caps of the drivers over the turnips as keenly and closely as they do that of Mr. Coventry on the Heath.

Strong Symptoms of a Revival of the Question in Congress.

Significance of the Resolution Introduced by Senator Lodge.

convention cannot indorse or follow him in the matter of finance. Mr. Morgan will be absent about two weeks, and his report upon his return will have much reight with those of his colleagues, who are anxious for further agitation at this session. If Mr. Morgan can carry his point, and upon his return here be able to assure the silver men that the Alabama Democracy will not indorse the Administration, because of the coloage Senators will at once renew their

There are signs, too, that Republican Senators, heretofore in antagonism to the silver schemes, are willing to contribute to a reopening of the whole silver question if thereby they can contribute to Democratic division on the Wilson bill. This is clearly the Lodge proposing coercive measures to bring Great Britain to terms about an inter-national menetary conference. The full text of the resolution is as follows:

Be Will Endeavor to Prevent the Indocessing the Selection of Vance's Successor on the Silver Question—Importance of the Selection of Vance's Successor on the Finance Committee—What Hill Wants.

Washington, D. C., April 49.—A subject of the Iveelest interest in Democratic Senatorial circles relates to filling the vacancy at the table of the Finance Committee occasioned by the death of Nr. Vance. The first suggestion was to postpone the matter until the Wilson bill should be disposed of. This, it was pointed out, would avoid any contention that might arise between the "conservatives" and the revenue reformers as succession. But the necessity of early action is now recognized, and some reformers as succession. But the necessity of early action is now recognized, and some formers as succession. But the necessity of early action is now recognized, and some the selection of the selec

Indian Lands Investigation.

WASHINGTON, April 19 .- Secretary Smith will soon submit to the House Committee on Indian Affairs his report on the investigation made by the Interior Department to determine whether the Choctaws and Chicka-termine whether the Choctaws and Chickasaws have any right to lands now occupied by the Klowas and Comanches, if the latter should take allotments and cede their surplus lands to the Government.

The land is located in Southwestern Oklahoma. The Choctaws and Chickasaws claim title to the land in event of the Klowas and Comanches relinquishing it to the Government, and will demand payment for it. Commissioner Browning has made a report on the matter to the Secretary, and is now awaiting the latter's action.

ANALYSIS OF MILE.

How to Detect Whether It Has Been Skimmed or Watered.

The chemical analysis of milk is quite a simple process. A small dish should be carefully weighed, a small amount of milk added and then weighed again. By subtracting the weight of the dish from the weight of both, the weight of from the weight of both, the weight of the milk is found and carefully recorded. The dish is placed over a steam jet, and the water of the milk evaporates, leaving a residue. It is this residue which passes under the name of "solids." A last weighing of the dish with the milk residue, less the weight of the dish, gives the solids, and by a single calculation the Percentage is found. The solids of milk have been found by innumerable analyses to average about 13 percent, and, while the fat varies in the milk from different cows, the solids left after extracting the fat is a very constant quantity, hardly ever falling below 9 per cent. This gives the chemist a positive basis for his calculations and enables imm to state with great certainty whether or not the milk has been watered. The fat or oil in milk has been watered. The fat or oil in milk the residue remaining after the operation being termed "solids, not fat." The average fat or oil found in cow's milk is 3 per cent, and any amount less than this is commonly taken as showing that the milk has been skimmed. If analysis shows a decrease of fat—and solids, not fat—it is said to be certain that the milk has been skimmed.

as he is known to be, and especially antagonistic to income tax, there would be good reason for hoping on the part of those who agree with him that the bill would be materially amended if it should again go to the English national game had never before reached such a polit in public favor as it did last year in the metropolis aione. CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

Test Case Brought in the District Court by an Ousted Treasury Clerk.

Washington, D. C., April 19.—A petition was filed to-day in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia by Eugene E. Gaddis.

Di

were thrown open yesterday and the police on peeping through the portals noticed a man behind a counter dispensing liquor refreshments to quite a crowd of jovial customers.

The officer on the beat reported the matter, and Sergt. Pickel and Officers Lawton and Funk determined to watch the place. When they had seen sufficient they entered and when the bar-keeper, Andy Walz, could not show a license allowing him to retail liquor he was taken to the Fourth District Station and locked up until his employer, Frank Mahon, came to his rescue and got him out on bond. When Walz was taken away Jerry Concannon took his place behind the par, and he met a similar fate. Then Wals, who had been released in the meantime, came back again to his post and was "run in" for a second time.

This happened last night, and when Walz opened up again this morning he was again placed under arrest. When his case was called in the Second District Police Court he failed to answer and the Court ordered his bond forfetted. As Marshal Charlie McCormwas crying out "Frank Mahon, Frank Mohon, bring the body of Andy Walz Frank Monos, bring the body of andy waitinto court and save your recognizance."
Mahon came rushing in, exclaiming: "Hold on, I'm bringing him in," and walked up smiling to Assistant City Attorney Mulvihil's desk, followed by Walz. Mahon asked for a continuance, and after consultation with the police Mr. Mulvihill granted it.

Not RUNNING A SALOON.

Mahon asked for a continuance on the ground that he was not running a saloon. The new establishment at Eighth street and Cass avenue, he said, was the club-house of which he was President. It was not a new organization he said, but had been granted a charter in 1892 by the Secretary of State, and charter in 1892 by the Secretary of State, and had since been in existence at Twenty-first and walaut streets until it was removed to its present quarters a few days ago, in support of this assertion Mr. Mahon reached down in his pocket and pulled out his charter. It was pocket and pulled out his charter. It was issued Oct. 18, 1892, by A. A. Leseuer, incorporating Anthony Febringer, E. W. Mollenger as a body politic for fifty years, under the title of the Home Gymnasium Club, for which a pro forma decree of incorporation had previously been granted by the Circuit Court and filed with Secretary of State M. K. McGrath June 15, 1898. Art. 1 specified that the purpose of the gymnasium was to promote healthful athletic exercises, and in connection therewith to establish a reading-room to promote the spread of information among its members and in order to secure a closer union and co-operation of the members, with a view to social and mental improvement, to assist the sick or disabled members and to obtain and enjoy a place for frequent intercourse with all the rights and franchises pertaining to a body corporate and politic.

Mr. Mahon explained that the members of the club shortly after its inception elected him over Febringer as President, and reciected him for another two-year term just two weeks ago. He said he was just fixing up the place and that he was selling beer and whisky to no one but registered members of the club. had since been in existence at Twenty-first

DISCRIMINATION IN FAVOR OF THE WEALTHY. A merry smile flitted over Mr. Mahon's mobile features as he explained, with attempted indignation: "They can't close me up till they do the St. Louis Club. If they do, I'il appeal. I am willing to abide by the decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of col. Bell against the St. Louis Club. But the police are not treating me exactly right. Here they don't arrest the President of the St. Louis Club, and; they come to carry off my barkeeper before he can even put up the dumbbells in our gymnasium. They got a lot of rich men in the St. Louis Club, that's why. Because I set up a good lunch here and keep the members in off the streets and away from the police they try to close us up. This is a club-house, and you can see I'm fixing it up. We'll have the reading-room up-stairs.'

The police are investigating the matter, and Mr. Mulvihill says if they bring enough evidence into court to show that Mahon is seiling liquor without a license he will certainly prosecute him.

A reporter who went into Mahon's place and ordered a drink was told he must join the club first, and immediately had a card made out to him, reading:

A NEW STORY

Which Tells of Gen. Grant's Kindness of Heart.

From the Blue and Gray. Mr. Bryant S. Parker, formerly of a South Carolina regiment, relates the following incident: In one hard-fought battle in Virginia, in which my regiment lost heavily in killed and wounded, I was taken prisoner with a lot of others of our regiment. We were placed under guard at the rear and all were searched. I had in my pocketbook my Masonic demit. Next morning the guard came and told me that I was wanted at Gen. Grant's head-quarters.

Next morning the guard came and told me that I was wanted at Gen. Grant's head-quarters.

I thought my time to die had surely come, and that I would not see Sailie and the children any more. I was sure the General was going to have me shot. I was the only one of our boys who was wanted at the headquarters, and the guard told me to move on. I soon reached the tent and was told to go in side. I was frightened almost to death. My teeth rattled, my knees shook, and the perspiration was streaming from my face, although the day was cold. However, I entered and the tent was closed, and I was alone with the Commander-in-Chief of the United States forces. He saw that I was so frightened L could hardly speak, and arising from his camp stool, he shook hands with me and asked me to be seated. He was so kind and good that I soon feit at home.

After talking pleasantly for a while, he asked me to what regiment I belonged and where my home was. He then picked up my demit from the table, and asked me if it was mine. I replied that it was. He then nasked me if I was a Mason, and I soon convinced him of that. He then went to the table and wo teem y parole, gave me some money, and told me to go home to Saille and the children. The guard was called, and with a hearty "good-by," I departed from Gen. Grant's headquarters the happiest man in the army. Gen. Grant was a mighty fine gentleman, whom I always remember in my prayers.

boys, brothers of the two little flower girls who were sent to the House of Refuge eral days ago, arrested by Officer Steele last night while in the act of open-ing the sixth street door of Ing the Sixth street door of the Wm. Barr Dry Goods store, last evening, will be sent to the House of Refuge. The boys had a skeleton key, which turned the bolts of the lock, but the door was held by means of other bolts, and it could not be opened.

The boys are aged 15 and 15 years respectively, and are considered the smoothest mendicants in the city. Their home is said to be at 1281 O'Failon street. Their chief scheme is for the younger to feign slumber in a doorway, and when a crowd comes up the elder one awakens him and tells him to go home. Georgie then begins to cry because he has no home and the hearts and purses of those passing are touched.

Ewallowed a Diamond Stud.

Detectives Harrington and Walsh hastened to the Hotel Vendome, Fifteenth and Olive streets, yesterday on a report that Thomas Ealey was holding Bettle Ray, colored, a prisoner because she had swallowed his diamond stud worth $250. According to the story learned by the police Ealey, who owns the Pearl and Phoenix Hotels, both rooming houses, gave the woman a hat and a satchel. She went to her home, at 2664 Morgan street, in a carriage with the gifts and Ealey came soon after. The pair quarreied, and Ealey leaving got into the vehicle in which the woman had ridden. He discovered the hat and satchel and threw them out, but Edward L. Schoeffer, the driver, returned them. The hat and satchel had disappeared when the woman went in search of them, and she claimed that there was $122.50 in the satchel. To avenge her loss, it is said, she bit the diamond stud from Ealey's shirt bosom and swallowed it. Both persons were satisfied and the police made no arrests. streets, vesterday on a report that Thomas

MILK TRUST.

There is a consolidation of about 400 of the city dairymen-the Union Dairy Co., the Grafemann Dalry Co., the Stelgers Dairy Co., Peevly's Dairy Co., and several smaller concerns. They have, and are, using every available means to have passed the milk ordinance, known as the Stone bill, which is being so freely discussed at the present time.

This bill licenses the sale of milk of a lower standard than any city in the United States, and it does not prevent the milk vender from carrying on the same wagon both skimmed and pure, wholesome milk, which enables the driver to mix the two in the act of delivery.

Every mother should realize the danger and avert it by not buying from parties who are the projectors of a scheme that will enable the dishonest milkman to defraud the public.

We are not in the combine. We are opposing the passage of this ordinance for the reason that we fear that it will encourage the sale of poor milk. spectfully,

SECON

MOST DIVERSIFIED! MOST MERITORIOUS! MOST ATTRACTIVE! Collection of reproductions of masterpieces of modern art ever published is fitly called

'Famous Paintings of the World."

It costs only a mere trifle compared with the ordinary art-books, and contains three times as many photographic reproductions of paintings. Why should you pay Twenty-five Dollars for 25 parts of an art-book, which contains only 100 reproductions of paintings, when you can obtain "FAMOUS PAINTINGS OF THE WORLD" at the insignificant price of TEN CENTS for each portfolio of 16 magnificent reproductions of paintings? "ALL THE WORLD LOVES A LOVER;" at any rate all the world is interested in really artistic pictures. Nothing but paintings of the GREATEST MERIT AND ATTRACTIVENESS are given in "FAMOUS PAINTINGS OF THE WORLD." THE VARIETY OF SUBJECTS embraced in this collection of 320 masterpieces is really marvelous.

Home Pictures

In which domestic incidents are depicted in great variety—with adequate representations of bright and joyous childhood.

Battle Pictures

By the greatest military painters in this country and Europe. War has not ceased and art has not ceased to delineate its cruel ravages.

Humorous Pictures

In which bright artistic merit is united with facetiousness in depicting a laughable or amusing Miscellaneous Pictures situation.

Sentimental Pictures

In which the old, old story of love and devotion is told by artists as charmingly as by the novelists and poets.

Landscape Pictures

In which the beauties of nature are presented in infinite variety, but it is always nature associated with human life or human interest. In many of these landscape pictures those noble animalshorses, cattle and dogs-always favorite subjects with the painter, have received ample justice.

Historical Pictures

In which great scenes of past ages are brought vividly to the mind and imagination. Some of these historical pictures, though done by modern artists, have classical subjects and are treated in the classical style.

Marine Pictures

In which the waters of the ocean, lake and river, diversified with numerous forms of human life and human activity, are presented.

Giving innumerable glimpses of contemporaneous life and manners in all nations: giving the most artistic representations of the hopes and sentiments and aspirations of the human race. Some of these miscellaneous pictures introduce us to the mild aspects of country and peasant life. In them the rural homes of the people are displayed. In them may be seen the spire of the village church and the school-house with its bevy of happy occupants. Old age is also amply illustrated. The gray-headed sire; the wrinkled mother; the tottering grandfather; the nonogenarian; the ancient fisherman, by the bay; the old carpenter; the hale gardener, who has passed his 80th birthday among birds and flowers-these and innumerable other artistic scenes are beautifully reproduced in "FAMOUS PAINTINGS OF THE WORLD." You can obtain at simply nominal cost this unrivalled work.

Five parts of this great work have been issued. Parts 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 can be had by cutting out the Coupons of the Sunday Post-Dispatch as they appear and presenting them to any Branch Depot, at the Main Office or by giving them to the newspaper carrier with 10 cents for each part wanted.

AN ORDINANCE TO BE DRAWN BY COUNCILMAN ARMSTEIN.

sary Conduits Now Being Prepared Mr. Arnstein Thinks Wires Can Be Forced Under Ground-Oity Counselor arshell on the City's Rights.

The investigation stage of the subway inhas been practically passed. For about oen gathering data and taking testi-on the general subject, and now a test be made to determine whether is any virtue in agitation. On shoulders of Councilman Arnstein the first duty of importance-of determining and expressing ordinance what the city can do and hat she can compel electricity distributing ompanies to do. Said he: "The commission has secured all the information it wants on the general subject.

I am now addressing myself to the duty of ascertaining what she can obtain. In a general way it is proposed to prepare an or-dinance providing for the letting of a con-tract for the construction of a conduit under he supervision of the Board of Public improvements to be taken possession of operated by the city, the con-tor to receive a fixed rental for a term of ears and the city to have the privilege of urchase at the expiration of that term. Thether the city can compel occupancy of ne conduit so constructed is not yet certain, but I believe there is no doubt that the city an force the wires off the streets as nul-ances. That being true, where else can they go except under ground, and if there is no other conduit for them to occupy they will of curse be obliged to take the city's. Now as the revenue, it is uncertain what that will be it the contractor's rental may be a considuable charge upon the city treasury, but iter the conduit gets patrons the strain will relieved. This is a serious question, too, it I believe it can be solved."

ESTIMATES OF COSTS. President McMath of the Board of Public Improvements, has detailed Mr. Arthur L. Zeller to make estimates of the cost of necessary conduits as a basis for he ordinance which Mr. Arnstein will pre-pare. As to the scope of the plans and ap-proximate cost of the plans Mr. McMath had pars. As to the scope of the plans and approximate cost of the plans Mr. McMath had this tosay:

"We have from Mr. O'Reilly of the city Lighting Department maps of the streets showing the number and extent of the wfres, the low tension and high-tension wires being considered separately. These maps will be used in determining where the conduits are needed. When the number of miles of ducts required have been determined it will matter little, as a question of expense, under what streets or alleys the conduits are to be run. As to the division of space between the electric light and the telephone and telegraph wires, respectively, it would appear from Mr. O'Reilly's report that the total duct space will need to be divided for the electric light by 2, and by the telephone and telegraph by 50. Our first computation will be made to determine how many miles of duct are needed, then the approximate cost will come in for consideration."

"Will you lay your plans for many years to come?" Will you lay your plans for many years in for consideration."

"Will you lay your plans for many years to come?"

"I apprehen not. It would have been unavailing for anyone to have tried twenty-five years ago to determine the needs of the city at the present time in the disposal of electric wires, and equally impossible for us to determine what will be needed in 1950. All we can do is to lay our plans so that they will be susceptible of expansion according to the city's needs. This is the idea that controls in nearly all public works. Posterity must look after itself. We will endeavor to so plan the work that it can be added to as required, but we will certainly not try to anticlpate the growth or the needs of the city for a long time in the future."

City Counselor Marshall yesterday rendered an opinion to the effect that the city possesses the right to lease existing conduits, and relet the same to companies using electric wires. The commission, however, went a step further and authorized Councilman arnstein to draft an ordinance affording the city adequate relief through the construction by a contractor and the lease and operation by the city of a complete system of conduits. This is the problem now before the commission.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Question of Investigating the Medical Colleges Cause, Some Discussion. The regular quarterly meeting of the State Board of Health convened at 12 o'clock today in the gents' parlor of the Southern, there being present President F. J. Lutz, St. Louis; Secretary. Willis P. King, Kansas City; Kansas City, and Dr. D. A. Merrell, St. Louis. When the meeting was called to order a report from the committee appointed to examine the St. Louis medical colleges, was called for, but as there was some misunderstanding on the part of Dr. Merrell, a member of the committee, the report was deferred. Since no report was made Dr. Merrell suggested that a committee of St. Louis physicians inspect the Kansas City colleges and vice versa. "That would not be my way of doing business," remarked Secretary King. "I would just as soon inspect the Kansas City colleges as those in St. Louis, and if I found any irregularities I would not be slow in saying so either, even if it was in my own town."

Dr. Merrell good-naturedly remarked that Kansas City, and Dr. D. A. Merrell, St. Louis.

Dr. Merrell good-naturedly remarked that shy of all evils.

At this functure of the informal proceedings Dr. A. W. McAlister of Columbia, Mo., At this function of the informal proceedings Dr. A. W. McAlister of Columbia, Mo., put in an an appearance, and the hody went into executive session. The first order of business was the reconsideration of the judgment passed upon the Northwestern Medical College of St. Joseph, Mo. At the Kansas City meeting the Beard of Health rated this college as among those of not good standing, and refused to recognise diplomas of graduates from the institution. To-day several members of the faculty and graduates of the college are endeavoring to present evidence that will cause the board to change their opinion. A recess was taken at 1 o'clock without any action being taken on the matter. At 2 o'clock the session reconvened and the matter was once more taken up. As there is no small-pox scare or other epidemic at this time only routine work is before the board. An adjournment will be had at 6 o'clock this evening.

WANT HIM TO SIGN IT.

Dairymen Ask Mayor Walbridge to Ap-

A delegation of dairymen, headed by Theo. Lange of the Union Dairy Co., called on Mayor Waibridge this morning with Lange of the Union Dairy Co., called on Mayor Waibridge this morning with copies of resolutions indorsing t heir skimmed milk bill and requesting him to sign it. The resolutions stated in effect that in the opinion of the these dairymen the people wanted just such a law—that, in fact, the bables of St. Louis had all begin crying for skimmed milk since shey heard of the Stone bill, and that as a popular me asure the Nayor should approve it. Mayor Waibridge wiped his glasses before a reading them and informed the consideration. As the ten days granted the Mayor by the charter for approving the bill will expire Monday he will probably announce his action on Saturday next, some other important measures demanding his attention at present.

ing, after the Inquest on Fireman William J. Gannon, that he came to his death as the resuit of an electric shock accidents lly im-

The inquest was more a matter of form than anything else. There were present, in addition to the witnesses, Assistant Superintendent of the Fire Department, Thomas Finnerty, and I. H. Lionberger, attorney for Laclede Gas-light Co., whose wire was found to have caused the farelity. Only four witnesses were examined. These were Mrs. Anuie Gannon, the widow of the dead man; Robert Cronin, a fireman, and brother of Aldermas Jim Cronin; Luke McCann, a fireman and A. J. O'Reilly, Supervisor of City Lighting.

Mrs. Gannon was the first witness. She knew nothing of the accident, and after a few perfunctory questions was excused.

Luke McCann is a member of Hook-and-Ladder Truck No. 8. He is stationed at Twentieth street and Washington avenue, where Chemical Engine No. 4, to which Gan-william Gannon. He testified that he, Gannon and Cronin came out of the yard, where the fire was, after it had been put out, together. McJann was first. He stepped into the alley, over the surface of which there was three or four inches of water. He received a shock and yelled "Look out!" Gannon, was just behind him. He stepped into the water and reeled and fell. Then they got a rope and dragged him to one side. He was dead. He saw several wires partly under the water. Cronin's testimony was practically to the same effect.

Cronin's testimony was practically to the same effect.

The testimony of A. J. O'Reilly developed the fact that the wire which caused the death was what is known as a Brush incandescent wire, and was owned by the Laclede Gus-Light Co. When the witness arrived at the fire Gannon was dead. In the alley there were six wires, with ends indicating that they had been melted by the heat and fallen to the ground. There were two alley circuit, two power and one Brush wires. All of these belonged to the Laciede Gas-Light Co. save one, which was owned by the Laciede

Power Co.

One power wire owned by the latter company had a circuit of 500 volts. The Brush wire had a circuit of 2,300 volts. In Mr. O'Reilly's opinion, based on experiments in New York, 500 volts was not sufficient to kill a man, and therefore he held that the Brush wire was responsible for the death.

The Coroner's verdict was rendered in accordance with Mr. O'Reilly's testimony.

Liquor Dealers Adjourn.

The Missouri Liquor Dealers' Association Clayton yesterday and elected officers for the next twelve months. A part of the business session yesterday was of an executive character and done behind closed doors.

The officers elected were: P. J. Tarmody of St. Louis, Grand President; Geo. Autenreith of Clayton, Grand Treasurer; J. H. Roth of St. Joseph. First Vice-President, and Chas. Schweickardt of St. Louis, Grand Secretary.

HARRY FRENCH IN TROUBLE.

His Dealings With a Prisoner to B Placed Before the Grand-Jury.

When the case of George Frixstein charged with burglary and larceny was called in the Criminal Court to-day, his attorney, Henry R. Watson, asked for a continuance stating that he had only en called into the case yesterday and had not had time to prepare. Judge Edmunds readily granted the continuance, stating that information had been conveyed to the Court of an imposition alleged to have been practiced on Mr. Watson's client which would be made the subject of an investigation by the next Grand-jury. Judge Edmunds stated from the bench that he had been informed that a certain party had represented to Frixstein that the party was related to the Court and induced Frixstein to turn over certain property to him.

A POST-DISPATCH reporter saw Frixstein in the cage where prisoners are kept while awaiting to be called for trial and he made the following statement:

"Harry French is the name of the party. He came to me last month and represented to me that he was a lawyer, and said that he

He came to me last month and represented to me that he was a lawyer, and said that he could get me off with thirty days in jail. 544-CHATHAM WAIST.

Sizes, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches, Bust Measure. Fancy waists are in great force this spring, and occupy a prominent place in every lady's wardrobe. Our model, the 'Chatham,'' is suitable for all seasonsble dress fabrics, and is most effective if two materials be used. The combination of silk and woolen materials is very pretty, but if velvet and silk be used the effect is more dressy. A fancy yoke adds much to the appearance of this waist: lace or passementerie laid over a color contrasting with the material of the waist is frequently used. It can be simplified by the omission of the slashed bertha and the slashed circle basque, and a full soft belt can be substituted for the letter. The outside is slightly fulled over a fitted lining, and it is fastened on the left shoulder and under the arm: the back is like the front, Our illustration represents silver - gray velour combined with black velvet, the yoke of sliver and black brocade, with silk and metal sou-

545-MARCELLA DRESS.

Sizes for 8 and 10 Years. This simple and becoming little gown offers an admirable design for a plain school or house gown, if made in simple goods, while it it is quite as desirable for best wear if made in dressy materials. The skirt is of straight breadths, moderately full, and is sewed to the waistbelt. The full "baby" waist has a fitted lining, and the front and back are alike. Blue serge, with red braid, are the materials used in this illustration; plain colored cashmeres, ladies' cloth or serges are appropriate materials, and a contrasting color can be used for the Vandyke braiding. Tan with brown, red or brown with black, dark blue with light blue, or green and gray with blue are popular combinations. China silks, with narrow rigbon trimming, and washable materials, with white linen braid or narrow embroidered insertion for trimming, are both pretty and serviceable; if desired, the ruffles on the sleeves could be made of embroidery, or one or two of the A special illustration and full directions

Live Poultry-Contrary to expectations the market has suffered a further decline for chickens. The receipts were not only large, but there was very little demand, as shippers were still holding off, while the local trade was buying sparingly, as it usually does on a down market. The demand for chickens for the Jawish Feast of the Passover holding has been very disappointing in all large markets of the country. Reports from New York state that chickens are cheaper there than they have been in 15 years and all other markets are squally as low. Turkeys were in light supply and fair demand, small stock being preferred. Docks quiet.

to the Council. During the fiscal year ending March 31. 1894, there were 7,526 cases docketed in the Second District Police Court, and only 3,750 in the First District Police Court. Twelve hundred and thirty-six prisoners were sent to the Work-house from the Second District Police Court, as against a proportionately smaller number from the Four Courts tribunal. Culef Deputy Marshal Henry Erb and Clerk Louis Huber of the Second District Court, who have extracted these figures from the records of the Marshal's office, think that as twice as many cases means twice as much work for the court officials that the Second District Police Court should have an assistant clerk and a few additional deputy marshals. At present both courts have one clerk and seven deputy marshals. It is likely that an ordinance will be introduced into the Council an assistant clerk and some additional deputy marshals.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON MISSING.

Police Are Hunting for Edward Halli-well, Aged 18, of Kansas City. Ex-Deputy Sheriff Al Collins called at the four Courts yesterday and requested Chief larrigan to aid in the search for Edward Halliwell, the 18-year-old son of a Kansas City millionaire cement dealer, who is the juntor member of the firm of Thorn& Halliwell The youngster had a dispute with his father on last Monday, because the lad did not want to go to school. His father insisted that he would be obliged to attend school while he lived at home. The boy became obstinate and on Monday afternoon some time he disappeared. He did not return home Monday night, and, despite the fact that his parents caused a diligent search to be made by the Kansas City authorities, no trace of the had could be found. It was then thought that he had left the city and gone to some of his relatives in this city. Mark of the country is an uncle of the boy, and it was believed that he had come here to remain with Mir, Green. The latter has been notified of the lad's disappearance, but he has no knowledge of his whereabouts. The boy's parents are very anxious about his welfare, and every effort will be made to find him. He had no money when he left his home, and it is a mystery to his parents how he could get along without any change. Halliwell, the 13-year-old son of a Kansas

MURDER SUSPECTED.

The Body of a Young Woman Recently Deceased Will Be Exhumed.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 19.-The report of what may develop into a sensational murder near Mitchell has just been brought to Prosecuting Attorney Edmondson's notice. It is alleged that Miss Clara Nichols, living three miles west of that place, died very sud denly last Friday morning. The remains were laid away without a postmortem examination.

It is alleged that the girl while dying attempted to tell something, but life was so near gone that she could not make her friends understand.
Since her burial, it is alleged, the girl had been shot through the abdomen and also that she had been horribly burned.
The prosecutor has ordered the Corener to have the remains exhumed and an inquest held.

Warrants for Wilson and Brown. Two more warrants were issued yesterday against Geo. Wilson, allas Malan, and Chas. Brown, who were arrested on Sunday night by brown, who were arrested on sunday hight by betectives Allender and Smith. One charges them with burglarizing the residence of August Steinman of 2222 Madison street and stealing two watches, an overcoat and other property, all valued at $25. The other warrant charges them with stealing a watch, two scarfs, an umbreila and a couple of rings from Wm. Kansteiner of No. 105 South Channing avenue on April 13. Three other warrants for burglary were issued yesterday against Wilson and Brown.

Detectives Allender and Smith recovered about $100 worth of silveryware and miscellaneous property last evening at the house conducted by Mrs. James McMahon, allas Jennie Winters, 1525 Fine street. She and Maude Sherman, who also lives in the acuse, were arrested on suspicion of receiving stolen property. The house has been the headquarters of Charles Wilson and Edward Brown, the two alleged burglars arrested on monday night. The women admit that the men were friend of theirs.

Mrs. Kansteiner called at the Four Courts this morning and identified a ladies silver watch and a slik scarf found, among other articles in the McMahon woman's house, as part of a lot of property which had been Detectives Allender and Smith. One charge articles in the McMahon woman's house, as part of a lot of property which had been carried away from her place.
